Youth in Action His First Piece Of Jewelry To Be Ring He Cast Himself

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Dave Christiansen has never worn jewelry before but he's got a good reason to start now.

The first ring that circles his finger will be one that he's made himself.

Dave is just one of a half dozen students at East High School who are learning the art of silver-casting.

The opportunity was offered for the first time this semester through the three-dimensional art class of Mrs. Shirley Martin.

While some of the major equipment of the casting process has been newly purchased, many substitutions are necessary for items not on hand.

Tin cans work well as a replacement for the standard steel investments to hold the plaster. But Sani-Flush proved a not-so-successful stand-in for a proper pickling (cleaning) solution.

Since silver-casting involves the use of some potentially dangerous equipment, pottery teacher Willie Sapp has helped most of the first-time jewelers handle the acetylene torch used to melt down the silver.

Mrs. Martin has supplied some of the scrap silver for several rings and will be reimbursed by her students. Junior Gregg Johnson found his own ring makings in a 1934 quarter and two Canadian dimes.

Because of the expense of the materials involved — $4-plus for an ounce of silver — Mrs. Martin hopes to get her hands on some substitute metals like white silver and Aztec gold.

Although new at the art, students are daring and innovative in the designs they mold in wax to be set into silver.

Dave's thick ring band sports a skier on top with the details of poles and skis well delineated in the silver. Not a skier himself, Dave just thought the subject would make a dramatic and different piece of jewelry.

Greg's first ring is simple in design, but he's now got wax models of a lizard and shark for future pieces.

Because the process is still so new, most of the kids express real surprise when they get their first glimpse at the crude silver cast as it emerges from the dissolving plaster mold.

"I had doubts it would work," Gregg admitted.

Once the cast is made, there's cleaning, filing and buffing to do to finish up. And that won't be an easy job for Dave, whose silver skier requires a delicate touch.

However, there's nothing dainty about Dave's ring; the large piece weighs in at about one and a half ounces. Come winter time Dave's going to have to make a choice between wearing his ring or his gloves.

Farm Prices Down 0.5%

Washington (AP) — Prices farmers received for raw agricultural products, an important but erratic indicator for consumer food prices, declined 0.5% from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

It was the first decline in the department's index since farm prices dropped 2% from last Feb. 15 to March 15.

Officials said lower prices for corn, soybeans, eggs, cattle and apples were mostly responsible. Higher prices were reported for milk and upland cotton.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said that despite the decline, prices at mid-month still averaged 4% above Oct. 15 of last year.

After declining 2% last March, farm prices rose five of the following six months. They held steady in August. The increases included: April, 4%; May, 5%; June, 2%; July, 3%, and September, 3%.

Meanwhile, prices farmers pay to meet expenses also declined 0.5% during the month but were 6% above a year earlier.

Farm prices often vary widely from month to month and do not necessarily mean a direct pass-through to consumers. Middleman costs for transporting, processing and selling food have been rising steadily and thus tend to offset farm price declines unless those continue for several months.

The department, for example, expects retail food prices to rise an average of 9% for all of 1975, partly because of persistent increases in costs of getting food from farms to consumers. Food prices rose 14.5% in each of the past two years.

The Oct. 15 figures did not take into consideration what has happened since then, including the removal of an embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union and the approval of a long-term agreement with Moscow for the regular sale of U.S. grain in the future.

Meanwhile, the report showed that prices for meat animals as a group dropped 1% during the month ended Oct. 15 but still averaged 29% more than a year earlier. According to USDA, consumers spend about 30% of their food money on meat.

The report also showed that dairy prices rose 6% during the month, including a record high of $9.53 per 100 pounds of milk sold by farmers.

The report Friday showed wheat prices at the farm averaged $4.02 a bushel as of mid-month against $4.11 on Sept. 15 and $2.92 a bushel last June 15 before Russia began its summer buying campaign. A year ago wheat was $4.85 per bushel.

Large sale in July led to the embargo on further orders and to a long-term grain agreement with Moscow. The embargo was lifted Oct. 20 when the new five-year agreement was announced.

The agreement calls for selling Russia six million to eight million metric tons of wheat and corn annually, with deliveries to begin next Oct. 1. That would be roughly 220 million to 315 million bushels of grain, depending on the proportion of corn and wheat. A metric ton is a measure of weight equal to 2,205 pounds, while a bushel is a measure of volume.

Corn prices paid farmers on Oct. 15 averaged $2.62 per bushel, compared with $2.76 in September, $2.68 last June and $3.45 in October of last year.

According to Friday's price report, the Oct. 15 index for all farm commodities averaged 193% of its 1967 base, compared with 194 in September and 186 on Oct. 15 of last year. The record was 208% on Aug. 15, 1973.

The department's parity price ratio was 76% on Oct. 15, unchanged from September. It was 78 a year earlier. The indicator theoretically expresses a favorable relationship between farm prices and costs when it is 100%.

Senators Concoct Substitute Remedy

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Friday scrapped another of Gov. J. James Exon's special session proposals.

Rejecting Exon's plan to establish priorities of state expenditures and authorize deferment of payments to governmental subdivisions, the senators prepared a plan of their own to ease the state past its cash flow crisis.

The proposal, authored by Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney, will divide remaining fiscal 1975-76 payments to local government into seven equal monthly installments.

Special consideration will be given to Omaha and Douglas County, whose representatives told the committee they will need most of their payments by the end of January due to their own budgetary cash flow problems.

An amendment will provide those two local governments with swifter disbursements to meet their needs.

Advanced 8-1

The proposal, inserted into LB3 to replace the governor's plan, was tentatively approved on an 8-1 vote.

Citing his fears that the plan does not assure salary payments to state employees in the event of future cash flow problems, Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln dissented.

Exon's proposal had given state employee salaries top priority in the event of a cash shortfall.

Legislative Fiscal Analyst Eldin Ehrlich told the committee that the Clark plan would turn an anticipated January deficit of $11 million in the state treasury into a $22 million balance.

The state's cash flow problems result when one month's commitments exceed the available general fund revenue on hand to meet them.

All Due At Once

Next January, the state faces huge commitments in the form of state aid payments and reimbursements to local governmental subdivisions.

Clark's proposal reduces those commitments, now in the form of large annual, semi-annual or quarterly payments, into smaller monthly disbursements.

The plan, ordered by the Legislature, was drawn up by state officials, representatives of six mental retardation regional programs and the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens.

Arnold Carmel, director of the State Office of Mental Retardation, said the plan does not take into account the proposed but as yet unratified settlement in the Beatrice State Home lawsuit or the funding problems being experienced by the six retardation programs.

Carmel said the plan is not designed to be a mandate for Friday's committee action leaves the governor with only one of his three major legislative proposals intact when they reach the floor of the Unicameral for debate Monday.

Plan Substituted

The Appropriations Committee Thursday wiped out Exon's proposal to slice $10.4 million from current state agency operational budgets, and substituted a capital construction funding change which would reduce 1975-76 general fund obligations by $5.6 million.

Only the Revenue Committee accepted any of the governor's recommendations, sending to the floor his proposal to hold the lid on 1976 tax rates by allowing the Board of Equalization to ignore the requirement for a 5% reserve in tax collections.

Senators will begin their floor deliberations at 10 a.m. Monday. The Appropriations Committee will meet at 8:30 a.m. to finalize its recommendations.

Sens. Douglas Bereuter of Uteka and Wally Barnett of Lincoln informed the appropriations unit that they have prepared a resolution asking the attorney general to pursue whatever remedies are necessary to force the State Board of Equalization to comply with state law.

The board, Barnett said, has ignored legislative requirements that it adopt rules and regulations, including submission of a report defining the state's future commitments.

'Certain People'

"Are we going to let certain people get away with not complying with the law?" Barnett asked.

Earlier, State Tax Commissioner William Peters, a member of the board, told the committee he plans to suggest that the board hold a hearing soon to determine a definition of future state obligations.

Many senators contend that the unwillingness to consider future commitments in establishing tax rates led to the current revenue problems.

At a public hearing on LB3, State Treasurer Frank Marsh rejected the governor's proposal that the treasurer determine disbursement of state payments within established priorities.

"Thanks, but no thanks," Marsh said, suggesting that task should belong to the governor.

House Committee Increases Tax Credit For Child Care

The New York Times

Washington — The House Ways and Means Committee finished its current round of work on a tax revision bill Friday by strengthening a section relating to taxpayer rights and enlarging the tax credit for day-care expenses.

The issue of taxpayer rights involves access by the Internal Revenue Service to the bank records of taxpayers.

At present, IRS essentially has unrestricted access to such records.

Under the procedure approved by the committee, anyone whose bank records are sought by the IRS would get 14 days' advance notice from the agency, during which he or she could initiate legal action to require IRS to show why it needs the records.

The committee's earlier version had provided only 10 days' advance notice and had required the taxpayer to show why IRS should not be permitted to examine bank records. Thus the committee action shifts the burden of proof to IRS.

The day-care amendment also modified a provision adopted earlier by the committee.

It would provide a tax-credit of 20% of the amount spent up to a ceiling of $2,000 for one child (or other dependent) or $4,000 for more than one. Earlier, the committee had limited the credit to 15%. Currently, taxpayers are allowed a child-care deduction, rather than a credit. A tax credit is subtracted from the tax bill an individual owes and thus, unlike a deduction, saves the same amount of tax for everyone regardless of tax bracket. A deduction saves more in actual tax for higher-bracket taxpayers.

The committee's new version of a tax offset for day-care expenses can be used by persons who do not itemize deductions — a goal long sought by feminists and those concerned with the well-being of low-income individuals. Most of the latter do not itemize deductions because they do not have enough to make itemizing worthwhile.

Because the present child-care deduction would be converted to a credit under the new bill, about 900,000 individuals who use the day-care deduction now and whose incomes are somewhat above the national average would be worse off than at present. These include married couples with incomes over about $15,000 and heads of households with incomes over about $10,000. About 3 million families would be in a better position.

In another step aimed at helping poor families with children, the committee decided that employed low-income parents who will receive an "earned income credit" of up to $400 under legislation passed earlier this year should not have their welfare benefits reduced because of this payment. Many low-income individuals are employed part time at such low wages that they are also eligible for some welfare payments, and the provision is aimed at keeping those payments from being reduced as a result of the special tax benefit.

The committee plans to give the whole bill a final review Tuesday.

The measure contains new tax reductions totaling about $2.8 billion for individuals and businesses. It also continues into 1976 and beyond some $15.3 billion in individual and business tax cuts made earlier this year.

Plan Urges Absorbing Retarded

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The State Office of Mental Retardation Friday released its five-year plan calling for continued efforts to bring the retarded into the mainstream of community life.

The plan, ordered by the Legislature, was drawn up by state officials, representatives of six mental retardation regional programs and the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens.

Arnold Carmel, director of the State Office of Mental Retardation, said the plan does not take into account the proposed but as yet unratified settlement in the Beatrice State Home lawsuit or the funding problems being experienced by the six retardation programs.

Carmel said the plan is not designed to be a mandate for future action but to identify future direction. The plan notes the six regions are now serving 3,000 retarded persons at an annual cost of $14 million in federal, state and local funds.

The plan sets as a goal the integration of retarded children into school age and pre-school programs for normal children. In addition, the plan said additional training in the education of the handicapped should be given in teachers colleges.

To better identify the handicaps and needs of retarded youths in western Nebraska, the plan urged establishment of a diagnostic center in or near North Platte.

Greater efforts towards prevention of retardation and education of the public and parents in the causes and nature of retardation are also supported in the plan.

Franco Has Peritonitis; Prince Begins Governing

Madrid, Spain (AP) — Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon began governing Spain Friday as Gen. Francisco Franco developed peritonitis, inflammation of the abdominal membrane, and slipped closer to death.

At the same time, police sources reported the arrest of Luis Yanes, a top leader of the Socialist Workers' party and three other party heads, but there was no indication of a general crackdown.

Police also prohibited a news conference for foreign newsmen called by Prof. Enrique Tierno Galvan, head of the moderate Popular Socialist party. No arrests were made.

Opposition parties are unauthorized in Spain. The only legal political group is The Movement, supported by the government.

The nation was quiet and watchful as the 37-year-old prince, Franco's designated heir for the past six years, performed his first official duty by presiding at a four-hour cabinet session. The stock market responded with one of its best gains of the year, 1.54 points. No antigovernment demonstrations erupted.

Juan Carlos was named officially, although temporarily, as new Spanish head of state Thursday because of Franco's lingering but terminal illness.

The new leader, trained from boyhood for the job, will become permanent head of state and the nation's first king in 44 years when Franco dies. The transfer of final power is guaranteed by a constitution Franco arranged.

Although the prince eventually will inherit powers beyond those of most constitutional monarchs such as Queen Elizabeth II of Britain, he was limited for the present by Spain's political atmosphere and the dying days of Franco.

The prince, however, cannot inherit the influence or political acumen with which Franco commanded the nation for 36 years of virtually unquestioned rule.

As permanent head of state, the prince will have broad hiring and firing authority that includes parliament's president, the council of the realm, his main advisory body, and the state council, his administrative body.

With approval from the rubber-stamp parliament, the head of state can ratify treaties, declare war or make peace. He may initiate national referendum and grant general amnesty.

Franco used decrees to make law. As successor, Juan Carlos also gets that power. He has authority to declare national emergencies and command the army, navy and air force.

Checking Accounts Won't Earn Interest

Washington (UPI) — The House defeated a proposal Friday which would have allowed banks across the country to offer checking accounts which pay interest.

Rep. Ferdinand St. Germain, D-R.I., floor manager of the bill containing that provision, blamed the defeat on "the power of trade associations."

The proposal was rejected 218 to 134 after the American Bankers Association announced its opposition.

Under existing law, financial institutions are prohibited from paying interest on money deposited in checking accounts except in New Hampshire and Massachusetts where such accounts were authorized two years ago as an experiment.

The bill would have permitted both commercial banks and savings and loan associations to offer "negotiable order of withdrawal" (NOW) accounts, which, from the depositors' viewpoint, operate just like interest-bearing checking accounts.

Kissinger Makes Offer; Pike Says It's Ridiculous

Washington (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger tried to negotiate his way out of a possible contempt of Congress citation Friday, refusing to comply with a House Intelligence Committee subpoena but offering a compromise backed by President Ford.

Committee Chairman Otis Pike, D-N.Y., called Kissinger's offer "a ridiculous proposition."

But other members seemed more conciliatory and voted to discuss matters further with Kissinger behind closed doors.

Jaunty at first, then growing grim as he pressed his argument, Kissinger told the public hearing he cannot comply with its subpoena for a secret State Department policy memorandum critical of U.S. policy in Cyprus.

"If we were to accede to that request," he said, "we would risk grave and perhaps irreparable harm to the very mechanism — the dissent channel — which has been established to encourage officers within the department to give me and my successors the hard, blunt and critical comments we seek."

He said some junior State Department policy planners would stop expressing controversial opinions if they could be held up to hindsight scrutiny by Congress.

In "a spirit of cooperation and compromise," he offered a three-point plan to give the committee a limited glimpse behind the policy planning scenes. The points, which he said had been "fully approved" by Ford, were:

- To allow any State Department of Foreign Service officer to testify "about the collection and use of intelligence information in foreign relations crisis."

- To allow any policy-level officer to testify on recommendations from subordinates "without identification of authorship."
- To give the committee summaries of recommendations on the Cyprus crisis without identifying the authors.

"There is no such thing as a full summary!" Pike responded. "We have a right to have that (Cyprus) document! . . . It's a ridiculous proposition!"

Others, however, seemed more sympathetic to Kissinger. A spokesman said the committee would meet Monday to decide on his offer and whether to proceed with a threatened contempt of Congress citation on the subpoena issue.

$7 Billion Loan Bill Advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House banking subcommittee approved on Friday a bill guaranteeing up to $7 billion in loans for New York City, $2 billion more than sought by New York Gov. Hugh Carey and $3 billion more than contained in a Senate bill.

The bill also calls for creation of a board of federal officials to oversee the city's financial affairs.

Approval came despite President Ford's promise to veto any bill giving aid to the financially beleaguered city.

The measure would permit issuance of $2 billion in short-term, 11-month securities. The federal board would authorize the loan guarantees. Its authority would expire Sept. 30, 1979.

A subcommittee lawyer said the $7-billion figure was determined after consultation with New York State officials, who reported that Carey's request for $5 billion was based on what he thought the Congress would approve. The city officials said the $7-billion figure accurately reflected the city's needs, according to the panel's lawyer.

The House Banking Committee is expected to begin work on the bill Monday.

A House Judiciary subcommittee is expected to work on a related measure Monday that would revise bankruptcy laws, as requested by Ford, to permit New York City to continue essential services if the city defaults.

If the bankruptcy changes are approved by the full Judiciary Committee and the loan guarantees are approved by the Banking Committee, they would be sent to the House Rules Committee, where they would be combined into one bill.

This maneuver would force President Ford to accept the loan guarantees, which he has opposed, to obtain the bankruptcy law revisions, or to veto both provisions.

DWARF GALAXY, left . . . is three times nearer the Milky Way than Magellanic Clouds.

Snickers Milky Way's Wee Neighbor

Washington (UPI) — An astronomer Friday reported the discovery of a dwarf galaxy nicknamed Snickers that appears three times closer to our Milky Way than the previously known nearest aggregate of stars, dust and gas.

Dr. S. Christian Simonson III of the University of Maryland said the new galaxy is approaching the Milky Way, the galaxy of which the Solar System is part, in a great orbit of the type comets follow around the sun.

Simonson estimated the new galaxy, tiny compared to the Milky Way, is about 55,000 light years away. A light year is about six trillion miles — the distance it takes light to travel through space in one year at the speed of 186,000 miles per second.

Until now, the nearest galaxies were thought to be the Magellanic Clouds, a pair of galaxies 180,000 and 205,000 light years away.

The tremendous gravitational forces of the Milky Way have distorted the little galaxy so that it has a drawn out, flattened S-shape, Simonson said. Its outer parts are being torn off by these galactic tides and Simonson predicts it will lose half its mass during the next 78 million years when it makes its closest approach to the Milky Way.

"It's been approaching for 9 or 10 billion years and for the last one billion or so it's been feeling this distortion," he said in an interview. "This is definitely its first pass because all that stuff is going to be ripped off of it and it won't be there for a second pass."

Six other dwarf galaxies are known to be in orbit around the Milky Way, but they are much farther away. They were discovered in the 1950s.

Simonson said the new galaxy had not been seen before because it was hidden from view behind dense star fields and dust clouds of the Milky Way. He discovered it by analyzing with computer calculations hydrogen gas detected in that part of the sky by radio telescopes.

"The amount of data that we have on this thing is so enormous that I don't feel there's any doubt," Simonson said.

He said it was jokingly called Snickers because it was "like the Milky Way, only peanuts." It has only 0.1% of the mass of the Milky Way.

Pet Thwarts Burglar

Des Moines (UPI) — A would be burglar crashed a picture-taking session in a home here but was stopped by a family pet — a 14-month-old hound.

Donald Bales, 32, and his wife, Sheila, said they bought the pet as a promotional gimmick for Bales' tractor and equipment company. They were photographing the animal when Charles F. Richards, 28, of Chicago, Ill., entered their residence.

The lioness — weighing about 150 pounds and standing hip high — jumped the man and held him down until Bales released him after he got a gun.

Richards was charged with burglary in connection with the incident. Polk County sheriff authorities said.

"In my 20 years in law enforcement, I've never seen anything like this," sheriff's detective Harold Strasburg said.

Packard Leaves Ford Ship

Washington (UPI) — The White House announced Friday that David Packard, wealthy California industrialist, has resigned as President Ford's chief campaign fund raiser — the second high ranking campaign official to quit in a month.

His resignation, like that of No. 2 election aide Lee Nynn, reported resulted from disputes with campaign director Howard "Bo" Callaway, but no official reason was given for Packard's resignation as Ford's finance chairman.

The resignations in the Ford campaign committee came as former Gov. Ronald Reagan prepared to announce he would challenge the President's nomination from the right.

At the same time, Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., said he was upset over Ford's conservative stances and was considering a challenge from the left.

Packard was campaign finance chairman and Ford's leading fund raiser. The presence of the Californian high on the Ford team was part of a strategy to combat Reagan's threat.

Before his resignation, Packard had lined up financial backing for Ford from wealthy Californians who might otherwise have gone to the state's former governor.

Trumps In Moslem Hands

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem forces, clearly holding trump cards in Lebanon's civil war, said Friday they could move at any time to take three luxury hotels bristling with Christian snipers, but were holding back to see if a cease-fire could be arranged.

Premier Rashid Karami announced over television that leaders of the hostile sides had given him their "words of honor" to stop a fierce outbreak of fighting in the eastern suburbs by 9:30 p.m.

Three hours after the deadline the battle between the Christian district of Ein Rummaneh and the Moslems' Chiyah quarter raged unchecked.

Thunderstorms before dawn Friday had brought a brief respite in the capital city's escalating street war. But as the sun broke through, the battles resumed with unabated ferocity.

Christian sharpshooters, holding out in Beirut's luxury hotels, sniped at Moslem street-fighters below to block a leftist takeover of the high-rise battle zone.

The snipers from the right-wing Phalange party's 60,000-man militia were the final barrier preventing Moslem forces from overrunning the hotel district that has become a key prize in Beirut's civil war.

The district is on the Mediterranean coast, and the sea is reportedly the major supply route for the Christian militias.

The leftist Moslems and their Palestinian guerrilla allies are supplied overland by Syria and Iraq. Most of their weapons are Soviet-made, indicating indirect support from Moscow, and they are said to be purchased with Libyan oil money. The Christian community of Lebanon has enough money to bankroll its own arsenal.

Israeli Tells Syria Not To Intervene

Tel Aviv, Israel (UPI) — Israel's army chief of staff Friday warned Syria against military intervention in Lebanon's Moslem-Christian warfare and hinted the Israeli army might have to respond if Damascus took direct action.

"If any Arab force, especially a Syrian force, should enter southern Lebanon it would have military significance of the first rank," Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur said in an interview with the newspaper Ma'ariv.

Though Israeli officials have not directly threatened military action in Lebanon to counter a Syrian move there, diplomatic sources in Washington said Israel would invade Lebanon if Syria stepped into the Lebanese sectarian warfare.

Exon Blasts Treasurer Marsh For Shuffling Papers, Shirking His Duties

By United Press International
The time may have come for considering abolition of the office of State Treasurer Frank Marsh and his $25,000 annual salary "if all he wants to do is shuffle papers and shirk his duties," Gov. J. James Exon said Friday.
His comment was triggered by testimony earlier in the day by Marsh before the Legislature's Appropriations Committee on LB3, which would empower the treasurer to decide payment priorities, if Treasury balances dwindled dangerously low.

Marsh told the committee, "Thanks but no thanks" because he felt the governor and the appropriate departments in the executive branch should make those decisions.
During an interview, Exon asked: "What kind of responsible government do we have when a man who was secretary of state, lieutenant governor and now state treasurer appeals to a committee of the Legislature to not make him carry out his assigned duties?"

The governor said he discussed the bill at "great length with Treasurer Marsh before my address to the special legislative session." He said Marsh "enthusiastically agreed he should, as the last man to sign state warrants, have the authority to set priorities when and if the balance in the State Treasury would not be sufficient to make payments as directed by the Legislature."

Exon added Marsh further discussed "and confirmed his strong feeling about this with State Tax Commissioner William Peters and suggested some amendments for additional authority we agreed to. Today he suddenly reversed his position."
The governor said, "If the Legislature and treasurer want the governor to do the constitutional duties assigned to the treasurer, I'll be glad to accommodate them."

Exon said the "thanks but no thanks" comment was the same as saying, "I do not want to discharge the duties of the state treasurer to which I was elected."
He added: "Here's a man who has said he's in a 'holding pattern' so he might offer himself as a candidate for governor in 1978.

"Mr. Marsh has certainly exhibited his lack of leadership in action."
The governor also said the majority of the Appropriations Committee showed "a lack of courage it has traditionally lacked in cutting expenditures" when it voted not to go along with his proposal to cut state spending by 3%.

Exon To Start Drive To Open Government

Gov. J. James Exon will sign the Sunshine Initiative petition Monday morning, making himself the first signer and kicking off a drive to enact a law designed to open up government.
The Coalition for Open Government Friday filed with the secretary of state its amended petition to get the political reform act on the November 1976, general election ballot.
The 10½-page proposal deals principally in five areas:
— Ethics. The political reform act would set up an independent, nonpartisan ethics commission of five members to enforce election and lobbying laws.
— Lobbying. The act would require lobbyists to file detailed reports on legislation they are interested in as well as on their expenditures and pay.
— Campaign finance. The act would limit the size of campaign contributions, but not expenditures, and ban corporate or union contributions unless made voluntarily by officers or members.

It also would require candidates to make a fuller accounting of their campaign finances than currently required.
— Conflicts of Interest. This section requires public officials, employees and candidates to report all property, income and loans in excess of $1,000.
— Open meetings. The act would require all public meetings to be open unless two-thirds of the body's members vote that the secrecy is needed to protect the public interest.
The Coalition for Open Government consists of Common Cause, Sierra Club, Lutheran Legislative Caucus, Nebraska Women's Political Caucus, Gray Panthers and other groups.
Initiative supporters must get 31,590 signatures of registered voters by July 1, 1976, to get the issue on the ballot. The coalition hopes to get 50,000 signatures.
Supporters expect a visit to Lincoln and Omaha on Nov. 6 by Common Cause Chairman John Gardner to boost their cause.
Gardner is scheduled to speak to a noon luncheon at the Hilton Hotel in Lincoln.

ZORINSKY... tells Dyas he'll run as Demo.

Dyas: Zorinsky Demo Candidate

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — Hess Dyas of Lincoln said Friday Mayor Edward Zorinsky of Omaha has confirmed plans he will seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.
Dyas, who also seeks the Democratic nomination and is a former state chairman of the party, said Zorinsky told of his plans in a telephone call.
"I welcome the competition," Dyas said. "After all my work in the Democratic party, if I can't beat Ed Zorinsky in a Democratic primary I'd better be finding that out."

Zorinsky declined comment on Dyas' statement.
Former State Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha has filed for the Republican nomination and Rep. John McCollister of Omaha has said he will seek the GOP nomination to succeed retiring Sen. Roman Hruska, a Republican.

Zorinsky told newsmen he has not firmly made up his mind about whether he will be a Senate candidate, although he has acknowledged he is considering it. So far, the mayor has not changed his Republican party registration.
Election Commissioner Mike Boyle said Zorinsky must change his registration before Dec. 15 if he is to run as a Democrat.

State Senators To Correct Deficiencies In SID Laws

Omaha (AP) — Some state senators said Friday they intend to correct what they believe are deficiencies in laws covering sanitary and improvement districts (SIDs).
At a meeting of the Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee in Omaha, Sen. John Cavanaugh III of Omaha said defects in the election rules and financial controls still exist in SID laws, despite some legislative revisions.
SIDs are governmental subdivisions which raise revenue by issuing bonds and levying taxes to pay for improvements such as streets, sewers and recreation facilities in developing housing areas.
Cavanaugh said one defect is that SID governing boards run their own elections and count their own ballots. Some close elections have been won by judgment board members by only a few votes, he said.

Sen. William Skarda of Omaha said his aim is not to eliminate the SID process, but to "clean it up."
Dr. Ralph H. Todd, of the University of Nebraska at Omaha Center for Applied Urban Research, discussed recommendations his office made in a report on SIDs which was authorized by the Legislature.

He said the recommendations "are not sacred" but that he believes they would improve the way SIDs work.

Wallace To Send Campaigner

Omaha (AP) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace will send a fulltime campaign director to Nebraska within a month, an aide said.
John Goff, an administrative assistant to the Democratic presidential hopeful, also said Wallace would make a campaign appearance in Nebraska some time after his official announcement as a candidate on Nov. 12.

Goff was in Omaha to conduct a campaign organizational meeting. About 40 persons attended.
Goff said his stop was part of a Midwest swing.

17-Year-Old Mom Gets ADC Funds

A U.S. District Court judge Friday ordered the Public Welfare Department to begin aid to dependent children (ADC) payments to a 17-year-old mother the department contends should be supported by her parents.
The $210 a month payments will continue, pending a trial or further orders by Judge Robert Van Pelt. A temporary Dec. 29 trial date was set.
The payments will be made to the North Platte girl through her father.
At issue is the question of whether ADC payments can be denied to pregnant minors whose parents are able to support them.
The girl applied to the Lincoln County Welfare Board for ADC payments, was declared ineligible and appealed to state welfare officials.
Alan Ihms, public welfare director, declared the girl eligible Sept. 8, but payments were not begun.

The day after an unsuccessful Oct. 21 attempt to get a restraining order, the girl and Carroll Lucht, her legal aid society attorney, met with welfare officials in North Platte to review her case.
Then on Oct. 24, Ihms reversed his eligibility decision.
Ewald Warnholz, Public Welfare Department general counsel, argued that the girl is living with her parents, who are self-supporting, and so should be supported by them.
She would only be eligible for ADC if her parents were dead, incapacitated or continually absent, "and at the moment there is no continual absence," he said.
Luchts contended that the girl is only in her parents' home because her foster mother in Lincoln could no longer afford to support her "and she had no other place to go."
"There are many good reasons why she should live there (at home), but there may very well be good reasons why she should not," he said.
The girl's ADC payments should have started Aug. 1 along with payments for "substantial medical, hospital and doctor bills" incurred when she gave birth in September, he said.

A Laughing Matter

America's enemies abroad have to be laughing up their sleeve.

President Ford is traveling around the country whipping partisan crowds into a frenzy by attacking New York City and its difficulties. He is trying to isolate the metropolis, the nation's largest and a city which people the world over think of when the United States is mentioned.

At the same time, Ford has asked Congress to double foreign aid.

As the head of a party which historically took the lead in caviling at foreign aid (only in recent years has it become a fashionable bipartisan effort), the President is breaking new ground. But why worry about the political consequences of upping the foreign aid budget when you have New York to kick around?

Now, there are very good reasons underlying a foreign aid program. It has been a basic tool of foreign policy for decades, and a useful one. For the upcoming year, Ford has asked for a healthy amount of military and other aid for the Middle East nations — which makes sense in light of America's peace-keeping role in that area and the first-step-to-peace agreement the U.S. negotiated between Egypt and Israel.

Nor can it be said that aid to foreign nations and aid to New York City are parallel situations. The circumstances surrounding aid requests are not at all the same and there are different stakes in the two different games.

But the questions can be asked: Does the President set rigid standards for the recipients of aid abroad? Can he offer ample justifications for all of his foreign aid requests? Does he use foreign aid as a cheap political issue and does he try to set the people of America against foreign states as he does with New York? Has he forgotten the injunction about charity beginning at home? And if not charity, at least a spirit of good will and an open mind?

Our rivals abroad must think we're bawling.

Good View Of The Good Life

All in all, the National Broadcasting Co. bicentennial salute to Nebraska was a representative package.

To be sure, the segment on football should have dwelled more on the team than on the fans; the portrayal of the flap over Interstate sculpture ignored other aspects of Nebraska's cultural progress and there was some political irony in the fact that Gov. Jim Exon, rather than a state senator, was asked to comment on the workings of the one-house, nonpartisan Nebraska Legislature. Many here will appreciate the humor in that apparent network oversight.

But the fanatical fan, the "I - don't - like - anything - I - don't - understand" syndrome in art and executive-legislative headbutting are all part of the Nebraska scene. As is the Strategic Air Command and the agricultural base of the state's economy: two other important aspects of Cornhusker life which were featured on the two-hour Friday morning Today television show.

The film clips of the state's diverse scenery, the listing of names of famous Nebraskans and the recitation of the historical and present day facts about life here might have seemed too familiar to Nebraskans, but it helped give a reasonable perspective to viewers far from these plains.

We can be mostly proud of NBC's necessarily abbreviated televised perceptions of Nebraska life.

Not A Laughing Matter

Tuesday's election in the Mid-State Reclamation District in central Nebraska will spell life or death for a massive irrigation project which has been on the drawing boards for years.

The question to qualified voters residing in the district will be "Shall the District be continued for an additional 15 years?" "No" means doom for the irrigation-flood control-recreation project while a "yes" vote will keep the project alive for future congressional action.

One of the interesting things about the election is that the electorate is somewhat stacked. Most of the people who stand to benefit directly or indirectly from construction of the Mid-State reservoirs and irrigation canals live within the district boundaries and can vote. Many of those whose homes and farms will be flooded over by reservoir water or cut by the canals live outside the district and cannot vote.

All of which is to say that it's a hell of a way to run an election.

JAMES RESTON

WASHINGTON — The Economist of London is worried about the United States, which is fair enough, since we are worried about Britain and ourselves. But as it looks forward to "America's Third Century," this most moderate and pro-American magazine beyond our shores wonders in melancholy tones about a "recession for the second great empire."

It is worth thinking about this at a time when the President of the United States is himself talking about New York City as if it were a foreign country, and crying like a Chautauqua preacher on New York to repent, and asking at the end: "When that day of reckoning comes, who will bail out the United States of America?"

The Economist's main arguments are:

(1) The two great empires that have ruled the first two centuries of industrial advance — The British, 1776-1876, and the American, 1876-1976 — have handled the task of world leadership fairly well. But the Americans, it says, are showing on the eve of their third century "the same symptoms of a drift from dynamism as the British did at the end of their century in 1876."

(2) World leadership is therefore liable to pass into new hands quite early in the Century 1976-2076, and in this coming era, "The world will face some extraordinary opportunities and also some bizarre dangers."

(3) America's contribution in its third century will depend largely, The Economist thinks, on how its three main institutions evolve in or out of pace with the changing times. These three main institutions are, in reverse order of impor-

What Does America Stand For?

H. G. WELLS

... tried to startle the British out of their dreams ...

tion and fiction without style, of lazy history, popular philosophy, slobbering criticism?

"Is there anything here to hold a people together?" Wells asked. "Is there anything to make a new world? ... Here comes the gale ... and all we have to show for our ... thought, all the fastness we have made for our souls, is a flying scud of paper scraps, poems, such poems!, casual articles, whirling headlong in the air ..."

The British paid no attention then, and if The Economist is right about the American empire and century, it would be hard to argue that the Americans are paying attention now, or even that the issue is being defined today by the leaders of politics, the universities or press as precisely and eloquently in America as Wells defined it for Britain during the first world war.

The Economist sees the coming age not as the darkness of the setting sun of the British and American days, but as the light and hope of a new day. The opportunities of the future, it suggests, "Will probably include an ability to put material living standards in the 21st Century more or less wherever men want them."

It is within the grasp of the human family, The Economist says, to transform its present annual world product of around $5½ trillion, produced by 4 billion people, to something on the order, "within the lifetime of kids already adolescent," of a "satiating" gross world product of between $100 trillion and $350 trillion for a world population of between 10 and 30 billion.

But much depends, The Economist insists, on whether America and her leaders retain their optimism and recognize "Their manifest and now rather easy destiny of leading the rest of us towards a decent world society," or whether they break up on narrower issues of the past and loiter about with mediocre and provincial leaders, into factional and regional urban and agrarian arguments over the value of bonds and local politicians.

We Could Always Rip-Rap The Rivers

We Can't Lose!

Central City, Neb.

Following the first release by the media of the pictures and descriptive stories relative to the proposed Bicentennial sculptures, I was enraged to the point of writing Governor Exon and State Senator Ralph D. Kelly, telling them how I felt about the idiotic affair and the peculiar manner in which it had slipped up on me.

Before mailing the letters, I had cooled off to where I decided to delay mailing until I could study the pictures and stories more thoroughly.

By this process, I convinced myself that there was possibly enough merit in the project that I should not try to persuade others.

My wife and I have toured every state west of the Mississippi River and we'll have to admit that each of them has a lot of beauty to offer, but none can hold a candle to Nebraska. That does not hold true with many of the tourists who cross our state on Interstate 80. They actually get bored by the beautiful level country, the repetition of corn, wheat, alfalfa and milo fields, lush meadows and pastures full of livestock grazing in knee-high grass.

Maybe the sculptures would be the solution. I do not think we have time to search for substitutes if we want to be ready for the Bicentennial.

When I heard about the proposal for the Mt. Rushmore National Monument back in the 20's, I seem to remember thinking of it as too far-out and a waste of money and I certainly was not alone. But we were wrong. It is a masterpiece and a real tourist attraction.

I think the Bicentennial offers us a golden opportunity to go all-out and get our share of recognition and the valuable tourist business. The sculptures aren't really to my liking, but could I come up with anything that everybody would like? No!

The committees that were chosen for this project are no doubt well qualified and have given freely of their time and money to fulfill their assignment. Should we side-liners push the whole thing over the cliff or should we gamble?

If it's a success — wonderful. If it's a failure, it won't be a total loss. We could rip-rape river banks with them.

David-And-Goliath Contest

Malcolm, Neb.

On Nov. 4, an election will be held in the Mid-State Reclamation District (including Grand Island, Kearney and surrounding towns and rural areas) to determine whether the district may continue. This election must be held according to law every 15 years while such projects are still in the planning stages.

Much has been heard and read lately regarding the merits and demerits of this project. In fact, a recent editorial in The Star questioned the fact that many people who would be in some way affected by the project if it should go through but are not in the district (including the City of Lincoln whose water supply could be seriously depleted in dry years) are not allowed a direct voice in the decision. The facts being what they are, however, it is up to the voters in the district to determine its fate shortly. Therefore, a comparison of the proponents and opponents of this project seems in order at this time.

Many of the proponents of the project have a vested interest in it, for the most part a financial interest at taxpayers' expense. The jobs of many Bureau of Reclamation employees depend on continuation of this project; the Mid-State District general manager's $25,000 salary depends on local taxes; and local business interests in the Kearney-Grand Island area hope to gain from construction expenditures. All of the above are at taxpayers' expense.

On the other hand, opponents of the project have little to gain, and most do not have a vested interest in its defeat (unless it can be said that saving their homes and farms is a vested interest). Many dedicated opponents are determined only to save the Platte River from the destruction that will result if the project goes through. A determined group of land-owners from the town of Miller and surrounding area which would be flooded by the Amherst Reservoir call themselves, appropriately enough, the "Save Our Land Committee." These citizens, interestingly enough, are not included in the Mid-State Reclamation District and therefore have no legal say as to its continuation.

Advocates of the project are well financed. The Mid-State District has taxing power and is using the funds to convince the very same taxpayers that they need to continue the District. It is a double, classic example of bureaucratic attempt at self-perpetuation in a David-and-Goliath contest.

I would like to make special commendation to one of the leading "Davids" in this contest, Mr. Mark Bolin of Gibbon, who as head of Mid-State Irrigators has fought this project as a waste of taxpayers' time and money for the past 30 years. Hopefully, the issue will be settled to his satisfaction before another 30 years have gone by.

Hearings And Letters

Lincoln, Neb.

Come January, 1976, and it will be time for "Old Faithful" to erupt once again. The first time was last July and August when hundreds of Nebraskans gave evidence of their refusal to recognize the gift of sculptures from the I-80 Bicentennial Sculpture Corporation. The time is now for these same Nebraskans to reaffirm their stand. Also, it is time for the many who did not originally express their reaction to join in.

The combined affirmation, the build-up for the January eruption, is now being assembled. The legislative subcommittee is gathering information from the public regarding the State of Nebraska's accepting the gift. Public hearings scheduled in December, unfortunately, are beyond access to the greater majority of Nebraskans. Held at five points along Interstate 80, time and distance (and, we hope, white moisture) will place the meetings beyond reach.

Nebraskans, noted for their resourcefulness, recognize the power of the pen. Inability to attend one of the meetings will be offset by a letter to the subcommittee expressing one's stand regarding acceptance of the gift. Mail should be addressed to Senator Ralph D. Kelly, Chairman, I-80 Bicentennial Sculpture Subcommittee, Nebraska State Capitol Building, Lincoln, Nebraska.

The senators and governor will be informed and guided by the strongest voices of their constituencies.

Favors East-West Shelterbelt

Lincoln, Neb.

It now seems that public opinion against the Bicentennial sculpture project here in Nebraska has been sufficient to place our state senators in a position of making aesthetic judgment as to whether the state can, wants and/or should accept these complicated symbolisms that are foreign to our state's natural environment.

This scheme must have been initiated by some benighted soul who considers Nebraska a wasteland, with nothing to see. But I feel that embellishing Nebraska with such superficiality is like trying to gild the lily. It would be bad enough if the "massive" sculptures represented the region or even remotely harmonized with the now rustic design and beautifully landscaped rest stops with their young trees which in a few years will make these stops an oasis of cool comfort for the many travelers.

It has been said that only a minimal amount of the funds for the sculptures are coming from the taxpayers, but I submit that private business funds and government funds must ultimately come from the same pockets — yours and mine — in the form of higher costs for goods and services.

If the Bicentennial Commission wants something spectacular to which Nebraskans can point with pride, why not an east-west shelterbelt along Route 80? This would be a project with which anyone and everyone could identify and would enhance and benefit the state for generations to come. The hearings should provide opportunity to let our state senators know that these artificial distractions or complicated symbolisms are too foreign to our great state.

Projectionists' Strike

Lincoln, Neb.

I support the Projectionists Local 151 strike at the Stuart Theater by not going to movies shown at the theater. I believe it is a man's basic right to fight for what his basic needs are, which in this case are the hours, hence the wages that the projectionists need in order to sustain their way of life.

It is because of this belief that I feel anger at the people coming out of the Stuart Theater, after crossing the picket lines, paying the theater the money that is going to allow the theater to continue operating, rather than negotiating with the union in order to end the strike, hopefully so the projectionists will be able to go back to work at their regular hours and wages.

I can't stop what has happened. I can ask only that before people go to the Stuart Theater, while the strike is still going on, they ask themselves if their movie entertainment is more important than the projectionists' right to earn a living, and if they decide their entertainment is more important, I want to ask them if they can honestly look the picketer in the eye as they walk through the picket line.

Zorinsky A Carpet-Bagger?

Lincoln, Neb.

We have been hearing rumors the past couple of weeks that Omaha Mayor Ed Zorinsky, a lifelong Republican, may switch to the Democratic Party to run for the U.S. Senate.

This would be an insult to me and all other Nebraska Democrats. We do not want to have a carpet-bagger in our party and that is exactly what Ed Zorinsky will be if he switches party affiliation.

He does not intend to become a Democrat because his views have changed; rather, he wants to be a Democrat because it may give him a better chance to be elected to the Senate. Once in Washington as a Democrat, no doubt he would continue to look like the lifelong Republican he is.

The Nebraska Democrats do not have to go begging to the Republicans for candidates. We have many men and women who are well qualified to run for this office. We very simply will not put up with a move like this by Mr. Zorinsky.

If he hopes to win the Senate primary on May 11, then he'd better think twice about running as a Democrat.

Can The Press Change?

WASHINGTON — Change does not come easily to institutions, especially those that have survived long enough to have traditions and patterns of behavior. Certainly it doesn't come easily to the press, which tends to feel misunderstood when criticized and, in this country, to see every unkind word as an attempt to undermine the First Amendment.

Nevertheless, there is a growing recognition among news people that traditional journalism, with its heavy concentration on dramatic events of the moment, doesn't quite do the job in today's strange new world. Hopping from the tip of one iceberg to the next, without having given prior warning that the icebergs were developing or examining their great masses below the surface, is being recognized as less than adequate — even as we continue to bop.

WES GALLAGHER
... AP president charges press with 'Cassandra tone' ...

rather than simply a reporter of change.

The conferees did concede, however, that all was not perfect in the news business. They recognized that superficiality and flightiness were too characteristic of today's news coverage and that the changing world is raising problems which the old techniques can't deal with. For example:

—Terrorists have learned to use the press, print and broadcast, to carry their message to the world. In fact, many acts of terrorism are performed for just that purpose. Are there ways the press can fulfill its responsibility to report what is happening without playing into the terrorists' hands?

—News coverage of what is going on among the tremendous populations of the underdeveloped countries of the Third World has been largely crisis-oriented. It takes a famine or mass bloodshed to get much attention. How can the people of the developed countries be more adequately informed of the problems plaguing the Third World and their relationship to global economic and political health?

—Governmental subsidies to the press are becoming increasingly prevalent around the world, as more and more publications go into the red. Can governments assist the press without diminishing its freedom?

By coincidence, just a few days before the Berlin conference, several hundred American newspaper editors, gathered in Williamsburg, Va., heard a disturbing report on the state of the press in this country.

It came from Wes Gallagher, who as president of the Associated Press directs the national and international news coverage most Americans read.

Gallagher told the editors that many sectors of the press are "developing a Cassandra tone ... We pose many problems, but suggest few solutions. We expose the petty machinations of politicians but virtually ignore some of the massive public problems of the day."

The press, he said, has been on an investigative binge in the wake of Watergate. While stressing that investigative reporting is needed, he suggested that it become less strident and be redefined as "accountability reporting."

"We have an accountability responsibility to the citizenry on how the nation's institutions are functioning," he said. Much of this accountability reporting must be explanatory instead of accusatory.

The alternative, he warned, is public confusion, cynicism and disillusion that would threaten the free press and democratic institutions generally.

So it went in one brief week. In Berlin, the press was criticized as "a blunt instrument ... too often obsessed with the passing trivia of a dramatic moment." In Williamsburg, a distinguished newsman warned that the public "is tired of accusations — it seeks solutions."

Changing an institution as set in its ways as the press is a long, tough job. But the pressures are building.

You're Never Too Old

DEAR ABBY: I am 84 and my wife is 77. We've been married for six years. It's the second marriage for both of us. First, let me tell you that we're both in excellent health.

My problem is my wife. She makes me feel like a dirty old man every time I approach her for sex. She keeps saying, "We're too old for that stuff. You're a sex maniac and ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

Abby, my first wife and I were married for over 40 years, and we enjoyed a fulfilling, active sexual relationship right up until the time she died. She was in her 70s.

At what age are people supposed to quit having sexual relations?

YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: There is no reason why normal, healthy people should not be sexually active as long as they live.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is with overly protective parents who aren't mine. Joey and I have been going together for a long time, and we are deeply in love. But because neither of us is of legal age, we're both under our parents' domination.

His parents moved to another city, and even though Joey had a full college scholarship in the city in which I live, his parents refused to let him accept it because they didn't want us living in the same city.

Joey will be 18 the month after school starts. What can he or I do about it?

LOST WITHOUT HIM
DEAR LOST: Nothing until Joey is of age and able to do as he pleases.

West
Immaterial

East
♥ J 10 7 5 4
♠ K 10

South

♠ Q 9 4

East had to discard at this point. He could not spare a heart, which would allow South to establish an extra heart trick in dummy and thus make the slam. So East discarded a club, hoping West had the queen.

South cashed the A-K-Q of hearts and then, recognizing the futility of ruffing a heart, played the ace of clubs and caught the king. Finis!

Opening lead - ten of diamonds.

One of the chief attractions of duplicate bridge is the opportunity it presents to compare your results with those of others who played the same hands.

This deal occurred in a pair event and was played at 13 tables. Most of the North-South pairs got to six spades and, in every case but one, failed by a trick. Those who stopped at four were far better placed, because they made five for 650 points.

The play usually started with a diamond lead and continuation, ruffed by South. After a round of trumps, declarer cashed the A-K-Q of hearts, discarding a club, but ultimately went down when he found that he could not establish an extra heart trick because of the unlucky 5-1 division.

The lone declarer who made the slam realized that the contract was ice-cold if the hearts were divided 4-2 or 3-3, but that he might fail if they were divided 5-1. He therefore took aim against a possible 5-1

Life Begins At Forty:

Many People Keep Zest For Life

By JOANNE FARRIS

How old do you feel?

A 78-year-old man and his 76-year-old wife drive their trailer from Salem, Ore., to Casa Grande, Ariz., every November and drive back to Salem the following May.

A 65-year-old doctor from the State of Washington and his 60-year-old wife drive to Nicaragua in December, work at a primitive medical station in the jungle all winter, and drive back home in June.

A 72-year-old woman mows her lawn with a power mower

once a week all summer. If it snows in the winter, she gets out the shovel and clears the front walk. Her husband can't do the yard work, but he puts the German Shepherd dog on a leash and bathes her under the garden hose whenever she needs it.

A 46-year-old divorcee with four children decided to go back to college. She married after her freshman year, when she was 18, and she's apprehensive about getting back to the academic routine, but she wants to be a social worker, so she made up her mind to take the plunge.

Three years later she was an honor graduate and received her B.S. degree with enough graduate credits so that she'll have her M.A. degree next spring.

I could go on and on with examples of people to whom age is merely a number denoting how long they have been alive. There are millions of Americans like the ones I've just mentioned, who take each day as a new opportunity to do something enjoyable.

Some of them emphasize exercise, some want intellectual activity, some pursue creative expression. But they all share a willingness to do things. They refuse to let a date on a calendar dictate what they can or cannot accomplish.

The great thing about growing old, which no one young can quite comprehend, is that as you get older you don't feel old. Of course, if you are sick or in pain, you do feel the burden of that. But when you are well, it is possible to remember and relive many of the feelings of youth.

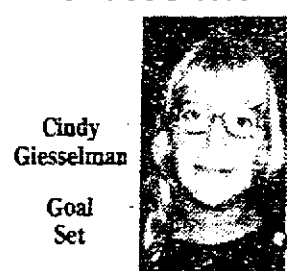

I'm not trying to say that youth is where it is at. What I mean is that within each of us there always remains the spark of life, which allows us to feel joy in physical exercise or mental exertion, to look in the mirror and smile as we see the twinkle in our own eye and know that we have within us an unquenchable zest for life.

One great thing about America in the 1970s is the increased freedom from social strictures. We can be as we want to be, do what we want to do, and live as we choose to live.

This is truer now for more people than it ever used to be. In spite of all the problems which our society faces today, we are free, as we have never been before, to "live until we die."

A Laughing Matter

America's enemies abroad have to be laughing up their sleeve.

President Ford is traveling around the country whipping partisan crowds into a frenzy by attacking New York City and its difficulties. He is trying to isolate the metropolis, the nation's largest and a city which people the world over think of when the United States is mentioned.

At the same time, Ford has asked Congress to double foreign aid.

As the head of a party which historically took the lead in caviling at foreign aid (only in recent years has it become a fashionable bipartisan effort), the President is breaking new ground. But why worry about the political consequences of upping the foreign aid budget when you have New York to kick around?

Now, there are very good reasons underlying a foreign aid program. It has been a basic tool of foreign policy for decades, and a useful one. For the upcoming year, Ford has asked for a healthy amount of military and other aid for the Middle East nations — which makes sense in light of America's peace-keeping role in that area and the first-step-to-peace agreement the U.S. negotiated between Egypt and Israel.

Nor can it be said that aid to foreign nations and aid to New York City are parallel situations. The circumstances surrounding aid requests are not at all the same and there are different stakes in the two different games.

But the questions can be asked: Does the President set rigid standards for the recipients of aid abroad? Can he offer ample justifications for all of his foreign aid requests? Does he use foreign aid as a cheap political issue and does he try to set the people of America against foreign states as he does with New York? Has he forgotten the injunction about charity beginning at home? And if not charity, at least a spirit of good will and an open mind?

Our rivals abroad must think we're balmy.

Good View Of The Good Life

All in all, the National Broadcasting Co. bicentennial salute to Nebraska was a representative package.

To be sure, the segment on football should have dwelled more on the team than on the fans; the portrayal of the flap over Interstate sculpture ignored other aspects of Nebraska's cultural progress and there was some political irony in the fact that Gov. Jim Exon, rather than a state senator, was asked to comment on the workings of the one-house, nonpartisan Nebraska Legislature. Many here will appreciate the humor in that apparent network oversight.

But the fanatical fan, the "I - don't - like - anything - I - don't - understand" syndrome in art and executive-legislative headbutting are all part of the Nebraska scene. As is the Strategic Air Command and the agricultural base of the state's economy: two other important aspects of Cornhusker life which were featured on the two-hour Friday morning Today television show.

The film clips of the state's diverse scenery, the listing of names of famous Nebraskans and the recitation of the historical and present day facts about life here might have seemed too familiar to Nebraskans, but it helped give a reasonable perspective to viewers far from these plains.

We can be mostly proud of NBC's necessarily abbreviated televised perceptions of Nebraska life.

Not A Laughing Matter

Tuesday's election in the Mid-State Reclamation District in central Nebraska will spell life or death for a massive irrigation project which has been on the drawing boards for years.

The question to qualified voters residing in the district will be "Shall the District be continued for an additional 15 years?" "No" means doom for the irrigation-flood control-recreation project while a "yes" vote will keep the project alive for future congressional action.

One of the interesting things about the election is that the electorate is somewhat stacked. Most of the people who stand to benefit directly or indirectly from construction of the Mid-State reservoirs and irrigation canals live within the district boundaries and can vote. Many of those whose homes and farms will be flooded over by reservoir water or cut by the canals live outside the district and cannot vote.

All of which is to say that it's a hell of a way to run an election.

JAMES
RESTON

WASHINGTON — The Economist of London is worried about the United States, which is fair enough, since we are worried about Britain and ourselves. But as it looks forward to "America's Third Century," this most moderate and pro-American magazine beyond our shores wonders in melancholy tones about a "recessionary for the second great empire."

It is worth thinking about this at a time when the President of the United States is himself talking about New York City as if it were a foreign country, and crying like a Chautauqua preacher on New York to repent, and asking at the end: "When that day of reckoning comes, who will bail out the United States of America?"

The Economist's main arguments are:

(1) The two great empires that have ruled the first two centuries of industrial advance — The British, 1776-1876, and the American, 1876-1976 — have handled the task of world leadership fairly well. But the Americans, it says, are showing on the eve of their third century "the same symptoms of a drift from dynamism as the British did at the end of their century in 1876."

(2) World leadership is therefore liable to pass into new hands quite early in the Century 1976-2076, and in this coming era, "The world will face some extraordinary opportunities and also some bizarre dangers."

(3) America's contribution in its third century will depend largely, The Economist thinks, on how its three main institutions evolve in or out of pace with the changing times. These three main institutions are, in reverse order of impor-

What Does America Stand For?

H. G. WELLS
... tried to startle
the British out of their dreams ...

tion and fiction without style, of lazy history, popular philosophy, slobbering criticism?

"Is there anything here to hold a people together?" Wells asked. "Is there anything to make a new world? ... Here comes the gale ... and all we have to show for our ... thought, all the fastness we have made for our souls, is a flying scud of paper scraps, poems, such poems!, casual articles, whirling headlong in the air ..."

The British paid no attention then, and if The Economist is right about the American empire and century, it would be hard to argue that the Americans are paying attention now, or even that the issue is being defined today by the leaders of politics, the universities or press as precisely and eloquently in America as Wells defined it for Britain during the first world war.

The Economist sees the coming age not as the darkness of the setting sun of the British and American days, but as the light and hope of a new day. The opportunities of the future, it suggests, "Will probably include an ability to put material living standards in the 21st Century more or less wherever men want them."

It is within the grasp of the human family, The Economist says, to transform its present annual world product of around $3½ trillion, produced by 4 billion people, to something on the order, "within the lifetime of kids already adolescent," of a "satiating" gross world product of between $100 trillion and $350 trillion for a world population of between 10 and 30 billion.

But much depends, The Economist insists, on whether America and her leaders retain their optimism and recognize "Their manifest and now rather easy destiny of leading the rest of us towards a decent world society," or whether they break up on narrower issues of the past and loiter down with mediocre and provincial leaders, into factional and regional urban and agrarian arguments over the value of bonds and local politicians.

We Could Always Rip-Rap The Rivers

We Can't Lose!

Central City, Neb.

Following the first release by the media of the pictures and descriptive stories relative to the proposed Bicentennial sculptures, I was enraged to the point of writing Governor Exon and State Senator Ralph D. Kelly, telling them how I felt about the idiotic affair and the peculiar manner in which it had slipped up on me.

Before mailing the letters, I had cooled off to where I decided to delay mailing until I could study the pictures and stories more thoroughly.

By this process, I convinced myself that there was possibly enough merit in the project that I should not try to persuade others.

My wife and I have toured every state west of the Mississippi River and we'll have to admit that each of them has a lot of beauty to offer, but none can hold a candle to Nebraska. That does not hold true with many of the tourists who cross our state on Interstate 80. They actually get bored by the beautiful level country, the repetition of corn, wheat, alfalfa and milo fields, lush meadows and pastures full of livestock grazing in knee-high grass.

Maybe the sculptures would be the solution. I do not think we have time to search for substitutes if we want to be ready for the Bicentennial.

When I heard about the proposal for the Mt. Rushmore National Monument back in the 20's, I seem to remember thinking of it as too far-out and a waste of money and I certainly was not alone. But we were wrong. It is a masterpiece and a real tourist attraction.

I think the Bicentennial offers us a golden opportunity to go all-out and get our share of recognition and the valuable tourist business. The sculptures aren't really to my liking, but could I come up with anything that everybody would like? No!

The committees that were chosen for this project are no doubt well qualified and have given freely of their time and money to fulfill their assignment. Should we side-liners push the whole thing over the cliff or should we gamble?

If it's a success — wonderful. If it's a failure, it won't be a total loss. We could rip-rape river banks with them.

David-And-Goliath Contest

Malcolm, Neb.

On Nov. 4, an election will be held in the Mid-State Reclamation District (including Grand Island, Kearney and surrounding towns and rural areas) to determine whether the district may continue. This election must be held according to law every 15 years while such projects are still in the planning stages.

Much has been heard and read lately regarding the merits and demerits of this project. In fact, a recent editorial in The Star questioned the fact that many people who would be in some way affected by the project if it should go through but are not in the district (including the City of Lincoln whose water supply could be seriously depleted in dry years) are not allowed a direct voice in the decision. The facts being what they are, however, it is up to the voters in the district to determine its fate shortly.

Therefore, a comparison of the proponents and opponents of this project seems in order at this time. Many of the proponents of the project have a vested interest in it, for the most part a financial interest at taxpayers' expense. The jobs of many Bureau of Reclamation employees depend on continuation of this project; the Mid-State District general manager's $25,000 salary depends on local taxes; and local business interests in the Kearney-Grand Island area hope to gain from construction expenditures. All of the above are at taxpayers' expense.

On the other hand, opponents of the project have little to gain, and most do not have a vested interest in its defeat (unless it can be said that saving their homes and farms is a vested interest). Many dedicated opponents are determined only to save the Platte River from the destruction that will result if the project goes through. A determined group of land-owners from the town of Miller and surrounding area which would be flooded by the Armerst Reservoir call themselves, appropriately enough, the "Save Our Land Committee." These citizens, interestingly enough, are not included in the Mid-State Reclamation District and therefore have no legal say as to its continuation.

Advocates of the project are well financed. The Mid-State District has taxing power and is using the funds to convince the very same taxpayers that they need to continue the District. It is a double, classic example of bureaucratic attempt at self-perpetuation in a David-and-Goliath contest.

I would like to make special commendation to one of the leading "Davids" in this contest, Mr. Mark Bolin of Gibbon, who as head of Mid-State Irrigators has fought this project as a waste of taxpayers' time and money for the past 30 years. Hopefully, the issue will be settled to his satisfaction before another 30 years have gone by.

Hearings And Letters

Lincoln, Neb.

Come January, 1976, and it will be time for "Old Faithful" to erupt once again. The first time was last July and August when hundreds of Nebraskans gave evidence of their refusal to recognize the gift of sculptures from the 1-80 Bicentennial Sculpture Corporation. The time is now for these same Nebraskans to reaffirm their stand. Also, it is time for the many who did not originally express their reaction to join in.

The combined affirmation, the build-up for the January eruption, is now being assembled. The legislative subcommittee is gathering information from the public regarding the State of Nebraska's accepting the gift. Public hearings scheduled in December, unfortunately, are beyond access to the greater majority of Nebraskans. Held at five points along Interstate 80, time and distance (and, we hope, white moisture) will place the meetings beyond reach.

Nebraskans, noted for their resourcefulness, recognize the power of the pen. Inability to attend one of the meetings will be offset by a letter to the subcommittee expressing one's stand regarding acceptance of the gift. Mail should be addressed to Senator Ralph D. Kelly, Chairman, I-80 Bicentennial Sculpture Subcommittee, Nebraska State Capitol Building, Lincoln, Nebraska.

The senators and governor will be informed and guided by the strongest voices of their constituencies.

Favors East-West Shelterbelt

Lincoln, Neb.

It now seems that public opinion against the Bicentennial sculpture project here in Nebraska has been sufficient to place our state senators in a position of making aesthetic judgment as to whether the state can, wants and/or should accept these complicated symbolisms that are foreign to our state's natural environment.

This scheme must have been initiated by some benighted soul who considers Nebraska a wasteland, with nothing to see. But I feel that embellishing Nebraska with such superficiality is like trying to gild the lily. It would be bad enough if the "massive" sculptures represented the region or even remotely harmonized with the now rustic design and beautifully landscaped rest stops with their young trees which in a few years will make these stops an oasis of cool comfort for the many travelers.

It has been said that only a minimal amount of the funds for the sculptures are coming from the taxpayers, but I submit that private business funds and government funds must ultimately come from the same pockets — yours and mine — in the form of higher costs for goods and services.

If the Bicentennial Commission wants something spectacular to which Nebraskans can point with pride, why not an east-west shelterbelt along Route 80? This would be a project with which anyone and everyone could identify and would enhance and benefit the state for generations to come. The hearings should provide opportunity to let our state senators know that these artificial distractions or complicated symbolisms are too foreign to our great state.

Projectionists' Strike

Lincoln, Neb.

I support the Projectionists Local 151 strike at the Stuart Theater by not going to movies shown at the theater. I believe it is a man's basic right to fight for what his basic needs are, which in this case are the hours, hence the wages that the projectionists need in order to sustain their way of life.

It is because of this belief that I feel anger at the people coming out of the Stuart Theater, after crossing the picket lines, paying the theater the money that is going to allow the theater to continue operating, rather than negotiating with the union in order to end the strike, hopefully so the projectionists will be able to go back to work at their regular hours and wages.

I can't stop what has happened. I can ask only that before people go to the Stuart Theater, while the strike is still going on, they ask themselves if their movie entertainment is more important than the projectionists' right to earn a living, and if they decide their entertainment is more important, I want to ask them if they can honestly look the picketer in the eye as they walk through the picket line.

Zorinsky A Carpet-Bagger?

Lincoln, Neb.

We have been hearing rumors the past couple of weeks that Omaha Mayor Ed Zorinsky, a lifelong Republican, may switch to the Democratic Party to run for the U.S. Senate.

This would be an insult to me and all other Nebraska Democrats. We do not want to have a carpet-bagger in our party and that is exactly what Ed Zorinsky will be if he switches party affiliation.

He does not intend to become a Democrat because his views have changed; rather, he wants to be a Democrat because it may give him a better chance to be elected to the Senate. Once in Washington as a Democrat, no doubt he would continue to look like the lifelong Republican he is.

The Nebraska Democrats do not have to go begging to the Republicans for candidates. We have many men and women who are well qualified to run for this office. We very simply will not put up with a move like this by Mr. Zorinsky.

If he hopes to win the Senate primary on May 11, then he'd better think twice about running as a Democrat.

Can The Press Change?

WASHINGTON — Change does not come easily to institutions, especially those that have survived long enough to have traditions and patterns of behavior. Certainly it doesn't come easily to the press, which tends to feel misunderstood when criticized and, in this country, to see every unkind word as an attempt to undermine the First Amendment.

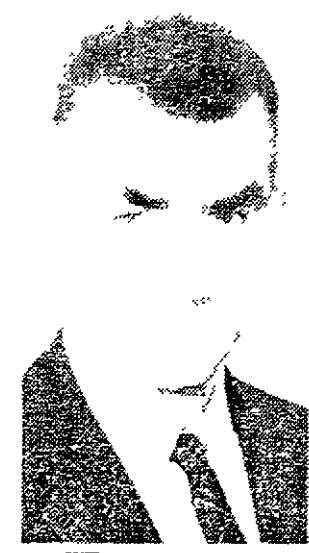

Nevertheless, there is a growing recognition among news people that traditional journalism, with its heavy concentration on dramatic events of the moment, doesn't quite do the job in today's strange new world. Hopping from the tip of one iceberg to the next, without having given prior warning that the icebergs were developing or examining their great masses below the surface, is being recognized as less than adequate — even as we continue to hop.

Several dozen news executives and public officials interested in the media gathered in West Berlin recently to discuss such matters. Those attending included newspaper, magazine and radio and television editors from all parts of the world.

The conference was called by Aspen Institute Berlin to consider the "new news" — that is, an approach to news reporting and presentation that would meet the demands of the world of the future.

Three days of rather formless discussion produced just one conclusion: "New news" was a word that grated on the ear and should be burned forever. The consensus seemed to be that news is news, for the new as well as the old. The traditional view that "we must put it up to use" — that is, to put them to use — seemed to prevail.

Moderator Douglass Caster's suggestion that the distinction is no longer acceptable and that news coverage should move toward Lippmann's definition of news was not disputed. But there was resistance to pressure on some participants to make a press agent of change

... AP president charges press with 'Cassandra tone' ...

rather than simply a reporter of change.

The conferees did concede, however, that all was not perfect in the news business. They recognized that superficiality and flightiness were too characteristic of today's news coverage and that the changing world is raising problems which the old techniques can't deal with. For example:

—Terrorists have learned to use the press, print and broadcast, to carry their message to the world. In fact, many acts of terrorism are performed for just that purpose. Are there ways the press can fulfill its responsibility to report what is happening without playing into the terrorists' hands?

—News coverage of what is going on among the tremendous populations of the underdeveloped countries of the Third World has been largely crisis-oriented. It takes a famine or mass bloodshed to get much attention. How can the people of the developed countries be more adequately informed of the problems plaguing the Third World and their relationship to global economic and political health?

—Governmental subsidies to the press are becoming increasingly prevalent around the world, as more and more publications go into the red. Can governments assist the press without diminishing its freedom?

By coincidence, just a few days before the Berlin conference, several hundred American newspaper editors, gathered in Williamsburg, Va., heard a disturbing report on the state of the press in this country.

It came from Wes Gallagher, who as president of the Associated Press directs the national and international news coverage most Americans read.

Gallagher told the editors that many sectors of the press are "developing a Cassandra tone." We pose many problems, but suggest few solutions. We expose the petty machinations of politicians but virtually ignore some of the massive public problems of the day.

The press, he said, has been on an investigative binge in the wake of Watergate. While stressing that investigative reporting is needed, he suggested that it become less student and be redefined as "accountability reporting."

"We have an accountability responsibility to the citizenry on how the nation's institutions are functioning," he said. Much of this accountability reporting must be explanatory instead of accusatory.

The alternative, he warned, is public confusion, cynicism and disillusion that would threaten the free press and democratic institutions generally.

So it went in one brief week. In Berlin, the press was criticized as "a blunt instrument ... too often obsessed with the passing trivia of a dramatic moment." In Williamsburg, a distinguished newsman warned that the public "is tired of accusations — it seeks solutions."

Changing an institution as set in its ways as the press is a long, tough job. But the pressures are building.

You're Never Too Old

DEAR ABBY: I am 84 and my wife is 77. We've been married for six years. It's the second marriage for both of us. First, let me tell you that we're both in excellent health.

My problem is my wife. She makes me feel like a dirty old man every time I approach her for sex. She keeps saying, "We're too old for that stuff. You're a sex maniac and ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

Abby, my first wife and I were married for over 40 years, and we enjoyed a fulfilling, active sexual relationship right up until the time she died. She was in her 70s.

At what age are people supposed to quit having sexual relations?

YOUNG AT HEART
DEAR YOUNG: There is no reason why normal, healthy people should not be sexually active as long as they live.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is with overly protective parents who aren't mine. Joey and I have been going together for a long time, and we are deeply in love. But because neither of us is of legal age, we're both under our parents' domination.

His parents moved to another city, and even though Joey had a full college scholarship in the city in which I live, his parents refused to let him accept it because they didn't want us living in the same city.

Joey will be 18 the month after school starts. What can he or I do about it?

LOST WITHOUT HIM
DEAR LOST: Nothing until Joey is of age and able to do as he pleases.

Opening lead - ten of diamonds

One of the chief attractions of duplicate bridge is the opportunity it presents to compare your results with those of others who played the same hands.

This deal occurred in a pair event and was played at 13 tables. Most of the North-South pairs got to six spades and, in every case but one, failed by a trick. Those who stopped at four were far better placed, because they made five for 650 points.

The play usually started with a diamond lead and continuation, ruffed by South. After a round of trumps, declarer cashed the A-K-Q of hearts, discarding a club, but ultimately went down when he found that he could not establish an extra heart trick because of the unlucky 5-1 division.

The lone declarer who made the slam realized that the contract was ice-cold if the hearts were divided 4-2 or 3-3, but that he might fail if they were divided 5-1. He therefore took aim against a possible 5-1 break. After ruffing the second diamond, he played five rounds of trumps, producing this position:

East
♥ J 10 7 5 4
♠ K 10

South
♠ 7
♥ 6 3
♦ Q 9 4

East had to discard at this point. He could not spare a heart, which would allow South to establish an extra heart trick in dummy and thus make the slam. So East discarded a club, hoping West had the queen.

South cashed the A-K-Q of hearts and then, recognizing the futility of ruffing a heart, played the ace of clubs and caught the king. Finis!

Life Begins At Forty:

Many People Keep Zest For Life

By JOANNE FARRIS

How old do you feel?
A 78-year-old man and his 76-year-old wife drive their trailer from Salem, Ore., to Casa Grande, Ariz., every November and drive back to Salem the following May.

A 65-year-old doctor from the State of Washington and his 60-year-old wife drive to Nicaragua in December, work at a primitive medical station in the jungle all winter, and drive back home in June.

A 72-year-old woman mows her lawn with a power mower

once a week all summer. If it snows in the winter, she gets out the shovel and clears the front walk. Her husband can't do the yard work, but he puts the German Shepherd dog on a leash and bathes her under the garden hose whenever she needs it.

A 46-year-old divorcee with four children decided to go back to college. She married after her freshman year, when she was 18, and she's apprehensive about getting back to the academic routine, but she wants to be a social worker, so she made up her mind to take the plunge.

Three years later she was an honor graduate and receive her B.S. degree with enough graduate credits so that she'll have her M.A. degree next spring.

I could go on and on with examples of people to whom age is merely a number denoting how long they have been alive. There are millions of Americans like the ones I've just mentioned, who take each day as a new opportunity to do something enjoyable.

Some of them emphasize exercise, some want intellectual activity, some pursue creative expression. But they all share a willingness to do things. They refuse to let a date on a calendar dictate what they can or cannot accomplish.

The great thing about growing old, which no one young can quite comprehend, is that as you get older you don't feel old. Of course, if you are sick or in pain, you do feel the burden of that. But when you are well, it is possible to remember and re-live many of the feelings of youth

I'm not trying to say that youth is where it is at. What I mean is that within each of us there always remains the spark of life, which allows us to feel joy in physical exercise or mental exertion, to look in the mirror and smile as we see the twinkle in our own eye and know that we have within us an unquenchable zest for life.

One great thing about America in the 1970s is the increased freedom from social strictures. We can be as we want to be, do what we want to do, and live as we choose to live.

This is truer now for more people than it ever used to be. In spite of all the problems which our society faces today, we are free, as we have never been before, to "live until we die."

Volunteers Help Limit Vandalism

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Vandalism and property damage in Lincoln Halloween (Friday) night was kept to a minimum through the use of extra eyes and ears of members of the Nebraska Land Communications Emergency Team (E-Team).

That group, some 30 members strong, double up in vehicles equipped with citizen's band radios and patrolled areas assigned by the Lincoln Police Department. Two members manned a base station at LPD headquarters and monitored calls from the other members.

"We were instructed to run silent but strong," E-Team coordinator Ray Klone said.

Police gave the members a list of things to report including: older youths taking candy away from small children, juveniles walking in the street after dark, garden hoses being cut, gas caps being stolen, fire hydrants being turned on, small fires, large groups gathering and persons throwing eggs.

"Use Our Heads"

"Police instructed us to use our heads in reporting any other situations," said Klone, operator of the 5-2 CB Shop & Service, 1212 S 10th.

Klone and several others formed the E-Team "12 years ago on Thanksgiving Day."

"We had been talking about getting involved in community service affairs making use of our equipment and skills," Klone said, noting, "This was back in the days before everybody and their brother had a CB unit."

A wall full of plaques, trophies and awards and a whole "bunch of letters of thanks," have been given to the group for its efforts in a variety of community fund drives from Honey Sunday to charitable walk-a-thons.

Friday night started out slow and quiet as the E-Team vehicles snaked their way through the streets in their assigned areas.

"It usually starts out this way," commented driver Al

A Spooky Way To Get Treats

cauldron to get to the goodies in a miniature casket. Randy Zoz is at left and Scott Niederhaus at right. (Star Photo).

Manuel as he wheeled his silver and white four-wheel-drive van through the Havelock area. "Last year we had some spray painting and fire hydrants turned on, but nothing serious," he added.

At police headquarters the volunteers were fielding "more calls as the night wore on."

Klone said. But that activity, too, seemed to die down "as soon as the bars close down and people head for home," he added.

St. Louis Symphony's Performance Moving

By DEB GRAY
Star Staff Writer

After Friday night's opening concert in a three-part series, the conductor of the St. Louis Symphony obviously had Saturday on his mind.

"I'm sorry I can't wish you all luck in tomorrow's football game," Leonard Slatkin told the sold-out crowd in Kimball Recital Hall. "We'll just see how much hostility there is between us on the stage and you in the audience tomorrow night."

There was nothing approaching hostility Friday evening. It was the "Welcome Home" spirit, as the St. Louis Symphony returned to Lincoln for its third straight year of performances.

The symphony responded to audience enthusiasm and to Slatkin's dynamic leadership in an exciting, moving performance.

Range Of Styles

The three pieces performed by the orchestra covered a range of musical styles: from percussive Leonard Bernstein to ethereal Mozart to majestic Beethoven.

The concert opened with "Excerpts from the Ballet 'Dybbuk'," which was written by Leonard Bernstein about two years ago.

The first movement, "Invocation and Trance," wove what sounded like Hungarian folk melodies over a relentless tympani beat. The march ground on, gaining momentum throughout the movement, leaving the listener breathless from its sheer preponderance.

The piece relied on sudden dynamic changes and special sound effects from the percussion section. The symphony accomplished these switches in mood with precision. Conductor and musicians felt these changes as one unit.

This four-movement symphony was adapted from a ballet. It would be interesting to see what dance movements were meant to accompany this music.

Harp Solo

The harp is often not a featured solo instrument. But the orchestra's second piece, "Concerto in C Major for Flute, Harp and Orchestra" by Wolfgang Mozart, showed the virtuoso capabilities of the instrument.

The solo cadenza passages performed by flutist Jacob Berg and harpist Frances Woodhams, although technically very difficult, sounded like delicate simplicity. The music was reminiscent of tinkling passages from a music box.

It is amazing that Mozart — whose life was rejection and despair — wrote works so full of joy and hope.

The final piece showcased the symphony's talents — Ludwig Beethoven's "7th Symphony," which was completed in 1812.

The symphony captured the tumult in Beethoven's soul — from lyric beauty, to frenzy, then triumph.

Halloween Encore

After the regular program closed, the symphony was called back for an encore. When all musicians had regrouped on stage, some wearing Halloween costumes, Slatkin said the group would play a "devilish appropriate" piece for the holiday. The orchestra then performed Modest Mussorgsky's "Night on Bald Mountain."

The remaining concerts in this year's St. Louis Symphony series will be 8 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday. Both are sold out.

According to David Fowler, director of Kimball Hall, the music department is already making arrangements to bring the symphony back next spring.

Lincolnite Held In Auto Death, Unlawful Flight

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Floyd Chancellor, 47, of Lincoln, Neb., has been arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for motor vehicle homicide.

Chancellor appeared before U.S. Magistrate Richard Gormley and was ordered held on $5,000 bond.

He was charged with motor vehicle homicide in September of 1974 after he was involved in a one-car accident that resulted in the death of Gwendolyn K. Menze, 44, of Lincoln, a passenger.

Chancellor was charged in Lancaster County Court with driving with more than the legal percentage of alcohol in his blood.

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"

2nd Psalm and Acts 4:25

"Ye that love the Lord hate evil! . . . Take thou away from me the noise of thy songs; for I will not hear the melody of thy viols. But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream!" Psalm 7:10 and Amos 5:23 and 24.

One may love the great hymns and music of the Church, but if one does not "hate evil" it appears God does not appreciate the music, and it is unacceptable!

"I have thought of my life as an arrow shot out of a bow: For a moment it is seen as it takes its flight across the landscape, then drops into obscurity. Let me be a man of ONE BOOK, THE BIBLE, and let me walk in its light for my own safety and that of my fellow men, that when I drop out of sight into obscurity I may be "Safe in The Arms of Jesus." — This is not an accurate quote, but is based on a statement of John Wesley. In one respect it is suggested he was mistaken, for the light his life reflected of The One Book has shined not for a moment but through centuries and has been seen across a very limited landscape not at all, but across the landscape of most of the world. He, and "The people called Methodist" "Loved The Lord, and hated evil!" in obedience to the command of God. They were especially noted, and offensive to many, for rebuking sin wherever they saw it — the sin of "any want of conformity unto or transgression of The Law of God." Often they suffered for it, but the reason they gave for "giving offense" was that they must "deliver their own souls" for if they did not warn men of God's wrath and curse to come upon the unrepentant, God would require the blood of lost souls at their hands. Read Ezekiel 3:17, etc., and chapters 18 and 33.

"The heart in your bosom is a 'muffled drum' beating out a march to the cemetery for you!" When they take you and me to the cemetery for deposit, it is because our spirit has left this "home of clay" and gone to its "long home," and back to God Who gave it. The Bible tells of two different kinds of "long homes." One where "eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, neither hath entered the mind of man the things God hath prepared for them that love Him." — a man's mind is not capable of thinking of or imaging the great good, joy and blessing of that home. We mouth much about "The love of God" but it would be well if we considered more "our love for God" and how and in what manner it is manifested. Jesus Christ said that in order that the world might know that He loved God, He obeyed Him and did as He was commanded: "Arise, and let us go hence!" He arose, and went to meet the mob, the cross, as most of His disciples fled. The other "long home" is the "lake of fire" prepared for the devil and his angels, for raging and unrepentant men and nations, for "God is angry with the wicked every day" and "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God." Psalm 7:11 and Psalm 9:17. "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment." Hebrew 9:27. The judgment, that appointment will tell the story, as the hand-writing on the wall did in the 5th chapter of Daniel, whether or not we are "weighed and found wanting."

Several years ago a minister of one of the oldest and best known Churches of the South began his sermon by asking his congregation if they ever thought of missing heaven after all, and facing an eternity in the "lake of fire." He said: "I do." Doubtless he was prepared to "Trust in The Lord with all his heart, and lean not unto his own understanding." After all the professions of faith, the preaching, the teaching, the churchianity, the good will and opinions of fellow churchmen and good works in the sight of men then to miss heaven! This is no idle question just to frighten! Did not Jesus Christ say in the Sermon on The Mount there would be many rejected who thought they were prepared? And in another place we are told that those who "rejected the truth and had pleasure in unrighteousness" that God Himself would send them a delusion that they might believe a lie and be damned! "Let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed, lest he fall!" Some one has well said that many professed Christians take John 3:16: "For God so loved the world, etc." and use it as a bat to swat and bat and knock out of the way all other Scriptures in order to justify their "love of the world, the flesh and the devil." Meditate a little on Christ's Temptation found in Matthew 4 and Luke 4 and see if He did not in effect tell the devil it is tempting God to take one Scriptural Truth to destroy another Scriptural Truth! "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." One of the auditors of the above preacher was much impressed by hearing such a question asked in such a setting, for so many ministers in our day openly and boldly reject the teaching of God's Word and Jesus Christ regarding eternal hell, or else take the perilous position that "that which is not talked about does not exist," and all this in spite of their ordination vows! The late Sam Jones said that those who throw "hell fire" out of their creed when they get to hell will have to adopt a creed in which there is nothing else but "hell fire."

It is impossible to be a Christian acceptable to God and Christ without "denying self." He said so time and again, in the strongest kind of language. Should we not pray for and seek "The Grace of God" in order to deny self? Should we not pray and Search The Scriptures in order to be fully persuaded in our own minds as to what is evil and offensive to God, and seek the strength of God to "resist the devil" and bear such a witness that men will know where we stand on every moral and spiritual matter regarding "The Law and The Testimony"?

Both In Japanese Prison Camp . . . 'Old China Hands' Reunited

St. Helena (AP) — The odds for two people in a Japanese concentration camp in China more than 30 years ago meeting again in a Nebraska village probably are very slim.

But two "old China hands," the Rev. William Hettinger and Sister Mary Kathryn Kappes, had a few tales to tell about their days in China and in a Japanese prison camp during World War II.

About a year ago, Father Hettinger came to St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in the historic village of St. Helena. Since he had no cook yet, the sisters at the local parochial school invited him to Sunday dinner his first weekend.

Talk went to his background, his years in China, and Sister Mary Kathryn asked if he had another name at the time.

It was discovered both had been in the same prison camp. With a mutual swap of former names — both were using names given them by their religious orders at the time — they remembered each other from their time in the walled compound.

Father Hettinger was in the camp for several months, then was transferred with other clergy to another camp and fairly soon was sent home in a prisoner exchange.

Sister Mary Kathryn, however, remained to teach at the camp school for several years and didn't leave the camp or China until the end of hostilities.

The two have different memories of life in the camp and two very different viewpoints. Both noted that their Japanese captors were not cruel or even unduly harsh at the camp.

Still, the rigors of the camp and lack of much food resulted in Sister Mary Kathryn losing about 50 pounds. She had been teaching in a large school in a major Chinese port city.

Father Hettinger had been living the life of the people in the interior, and bicycle and foot travel had him honed down so, he said, "It was like a vacation for me, and I gained weight."

The St. Helena priest was born in Miller Grove, Ill., in 1907, and after attending a parochial school in Pesotum, Ill., he attended a seminary for high school and the first two years of college. He then studied philosophy three years at another seminary, and returned to his original seminary for four more years of theology.

He was ordained in 1934 and in 1935 he went to China as a Franciscan priest.

"In 1943, I was expelled from China, but before all that happened, there was quite a bit happening," he said.

Actually, he said, he joined the Franciscan order "because I wanted to go to China since I was a kid, and that was the way to get there."

He was located in the interior and had to cover 61 churches over a 25 square mile area. "That's why I rode a motorcycle," he said.

The weather there was about the same as it is in northeast Nebraska, he said. "And that's why I still have trouble with my feet, especially the right one." He frequently froze his feet while "circuit riding."

"We dressed just exactly as the lay people over there, just as the Chinese men did. I never wore a collar over there. I don't think that was the best arrangement, but they wanted us to look like the common people," he said.

The first few years in China, he said, were not difficult beyond the rigors of traveling to his people, often through bad weather.

"You lived with the Chinese and lived their way of life until the Japanese came, and things started popping," he said.

Quite a few of the "pops" were from guns aimed at the American priest during and after the time the Japanese took over the area in 1937.

Father Hettinger tells stories of shootings, air attacks and the tribulations of clergy and people in the path of opposing armies.

Demand For Electricity Growing In Rural Areas

Wichita, Kan. (AP) — The head of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) said Friday rural electric cooperatives must prepare to supply a larger share of the nation's energy needs.

David A. Hamill told about 500 leaders from cooperatives in Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming that demands for electricity in rural areas have continued to grow while metropolitan areas have leveled off.

Rural electric systems experienced a 7.3% increase in electricity sales in the past year, while private utilities had little or no increases, Hamill said.

At the same time, rural systems had a 4.7% growth in the number of consumers served, more than twice the growth experienced by private companies.

"This growth reflects the impact of a reversal in urban-rural migration," Hamill said. "Between 1970 and 1973 nearly three times as many people moved into small towns and farm regions as into metropolitan areas," he said.

While electricity demands are expanding in rural areas, major urban power suppliers have cut back on new construction of generating plants because of inflation, skyrocketing costs and more stringent environmental requirements, Hamill said.

"Reports indicate that in the next four years expansion cutbacks of about $8.3 billion will be made," he said. "These reductions will cost the nation about 65 million kilowatts of generating capacity. This is ground that cannot be regained due to the time required to construct large-scale generating facilities."

The fiscal year 1975 was the largest year in REA history for direct loans and loan guarantees to rural cooperatives for construction of new facilities as more than $2.1 billion was loaned to members, Hamill said.

OPPD Rates Up Average Of 8%

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Public Power District board of directors Friday revised the district's rate structure and approved a general rate increase averaging about 8% to be effective with meters read next April 1.

The vote in the special meeting was 4-3.

OPPD officials said additional revenue is essential if the district is to continue providing a reliable supply of electric service to its customers.

The construction of a coal fired generating station at Nebraska City and inflation were cited as reasons the additional revenue is needed. The Nebraska City plant is scheduled to be in operation in 1979.

Residential customer increases will vary from an actual decrease of 5% for extremely small users to a hike of 16% for larger users.

'The Port' Quiet Again; 3 in Jail

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — The Port of Council Bluffs was quiet again, three men were in jail and a plucked chicken was in a police department freezer Friday.

Charged with intoxication and larceny of a domestic animal were Jessie B. Crews, 56, and William Leasure, 43, both of Omaha, and Birch Palaski, 33, no address.

The plucked chicken belongs to Russell Mayer, who has a cabin, several other buildings, a garden and some fowl on the Missouri River bank.

Years ago the cabin was the home of the late "Captain" Frank Schultz, who christened it "The Port of Council Bluffs."

Mayer told police he spotted three men in the area Wednesday evening and noted some damage to the buildings and a chicken missing.

Police said officers found the three men and the chicken, ready to be cooked, in nearby Dodge Park moments later.

The three pleaded innocent before Magistrate Dan McTaggart. Their case was set for Nov. 4 and they remained in jail in lieu of $50 bonds each.

News Groups Plan 'Gag Order' Appeal

By The Associated Press

A coalition of Nebraska news gathering organizations announced Friday that they will appeal a "gag order" issued Monday by Lincoln County District Court Judge Hugh Stuart to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

A spokesman for the group, G. Woodson Howe, vice president of the Omaha World-Herald Co., said North Platte attorney Harold Kay filed notice of appeal to the State Supreme Court with the District Court Friday. In addition, Kay, who represents news media members in North Platte, will seek a copy of the transcript of all proceedings in the case against Erwin Charles Simants, 29, and a bill of exceptions.

Simants is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in the Oct. 18 shooting deaths of a next-door family in Sutherland.

Judge Stuart's Monday order prohibits reporting much of the testimony presented at a preliminary hearing for Simants on Oct. 22, and also apparently bars publication of some facts learned by newsmen and reported prior to the hearing. The order, even prohibits publication of portions of the order itself.

Howe said that Omaha attorneys Stephen T. McGill and James L. Koley will file with the State Supreme Court actions to immediately set aside Judge Stuart's order, to permit the initiation of an original case before the state's high court and a request for an immediate hearing by the high court.

Larry Simms of Washington, D.C., counsel for the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, and Alan Peterson of Lincoln, counsel for the Journal-Star Printing Co., are lending technical assistance in the case.

"We have here a case of what we believe to be an unconstitutional prior restraint" on reporting of information from an open court session, Howe said. He noted that Stuart's order applies only to reporters, and not to spectators at the hearing or court officials.

"It is a fundamental right of the public to have open judicial proceedings," Howe said. Nebraska law provides for all court actions to be conducted publicly. However, Howe said that law "becomes meaningless if the public's representatives, the press, can't report what goes on in a public forum."

Howe emphasized that the media's decision to challenge Stuart's order is intended to protect the public's right to know what happens in Nebraska courtrooms.

Simms said that the Reporters Committee "is the only national organization devoted exclusively to the protection of freedom of the press."

Oil Strike Made Near Falls City

Falls City, Neb. (AP) — A geologist for the Kirby Drilling Co. said Friday that the firm has struck oil on the C.R. "Bob" James property, 4½ miles northwest of Falls City.

Geologist Darwin Quigley said it is the first oil strike in 30 years in the area.

Quigley said he would be satisfied with 100 barrels per day production. He said no production tests have yet been run, so it is not known just how much the well will produce.

The current market value of crude oil here is $13.60 per barrel.

$594 Taken From Market

Lincoln Police are investigating a burglary at Klein's Market, 815 S. 11th, that netted thieves approximately $594 in currency and change sometime late Thursday night or early Friday morning.

Police said that unknown parties entered the building by breaking out a rear window and then went to the front of the store where they removed two change cartridges and some bills from a register.

Man, 31, Arraigned In Killing

Lincoln Star Special
Plattsmouth — Charles Hamilton Scott Jr., 31, of Plattsmouth was arraigned in Cass County Court Friday afternoon on first degree murder charges.

Cass County Attorney James Begley said Scott was charged in the shooting death of James L. Jones, 30, also of Plattsmouth, whose body was found Thursday afternoon in a trailer park immediately south of Plattsmouth.

Begley said there were indications the slaying occurred Thursday, around 4 a.m.

Jones, a mechanic, suffered a bullet wound between the eye and nose, apparently from a handgun, the county attorney said. The victim's family lives in Pennsylvania, Begley added.

Circumstances surrounding the homicide are not yet clear and are still under investigation, the county attorney explained.

Scott, who is being held on bond, was unemployed, Begley said.

Grand Island Man Will Be Honored With Presidential Lifesaving Award

By The Associated Press

A Grand Island man will be posthumously awarded the Presidential Medal of Honor for Lifesaving on Highways, it was learned Friday.

The award will be presented to the widow of Andrew Rodriguez, Jr., on Nov. 17 in St. Louis, Mo. Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman will make the presentation.

Rodriguez, his wife Cheryl and their 11-month-old son Andrew were involved in a two-vehicle accident on a Merrick County Road on July 25, 1974.

All three were injured, and Rodriguez suffered broken ribs and a punctured lung, according to official reports.

Despite his injuries, Rodriguez pulled 16-year-old Gordon Scheer of St. Libory from the burning truck which the youth had been driving. Rodriguez sustained burns over 60% of his body in rescuing the Scheer boy. Rodriguez died five days later and death was attributed to the burns.

Rodriguez is the first person to receive the award posthumously since it was created under the Medals of Honor Act of 1905 to recognize "outstanding feats of bravery connected with the saving of life, without regard for one's own life, involving the operation of a motor vehicle."

Rodriguez was previously honored with the Governor's Commendation for Highway Safety.

Mrs. Rodriguez will receive the award during the annual meeting of the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials.

The presidential award also will be presented to Rodney Dee Elliott of Downing, Mo.

"This will be the fourth presentation ceremony of the Presidential Medal for Highway occurrences and the first posthumous award of the medal," a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Transportation reported.

Gov. J. James Exon and members of the Nebraska congressional delegation urged President Ford and the Department of Transportation to consider Rodriguez for the honor.

St. Louis Firm Agrees To Buy KETV In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — An understanding has been reached between the Pulitzer Publishing Co. of St. Louis and the Channel 7 Corp. of Omaha for the sale of Channel 7, KETV in Omaha, to a subsidiary wholly-owned by Pulitzer Publishing Co., KETV General Manager Ken Elkins announced Friday.

In a statement released by Channel 7, the company said further discussions leading toward a final contract still are in process. The sale, for an undisclosed price, will be subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission.

Service Would Link State's Hospitals

North Platte (UPI) — A telephone consultation service which would link hospitals in west central Nebraska with other hospitals and medical agencies throughout the state appears to be moving toward reality.

"We hope the first few facilities can be interconnected by the first of the year," said Larry Surber, assistant manager of the West Central Nebraska Emergency Medical Services Council, the organization working on the project.

He said the council is working on a grant that would pay for installation and operational costs of the system. He also said he hopes that at some point in the future, using agencies would be able to help share financial costs.

Surber said that point would be reached if the system were to allow using agencies to cut down on their existing communication costs.

He said the council plans to look into the possibility of working with the Community Health Education Consortium at Mid-Plains Community College. The consortium organizes classes and workshops on community health.

Surber said the kinds of services the system would provide include consultations, ordering of supplies and delivery of certain test results.

The system, he said, would benefit nurses, hospital administrators and other medical personnel and some public service agencies, such as fire and police departments.

Service use would be based on priorities, Surber said, with emergency services topping the list.

Varner Calls Water State's Biggest Issue

Grand Island (UPI) — D. B. Varner, president of the University of Nebraska, says the biggest issue facing Nebraskans is how water resources will be managed in the future, not Gov. J. J. Exon's proposed budget cut or other state problems.

During an Agriculture Forum meeting Thursday night, Varner said the role of agriculture — particularly Nebraska agriculture — will become increasingly important in world affairs. Suddenly, he said, agriculture has become "a darling of those who manage world affairs. It has become a far more powerful tool in resolving world issues."

Varner attributed the favorable U.S. balance of trade picture in the last two months to sales abroad of agricultural products. He predicted that in the decade ahead Nebraska may be No. 1 in agriculture.

Six million more acre-feet of water leave Nebraska than enter the state, he said, and "we should utilize some of this resource for agriculture. Not only does the increased production from irrigated acres mean more money for the state and the farmers, but the crops are needed to feed a starving world."

Varner estimated that Nebraska lost $4 billion last year because it did not fully develop its irrigation potential. Water management research should be given a higher priority in the state budget, he said.

North Platte Home For Kids May Close

North Platte, (UPI) — The Fred Leu Memorial Children's Home may be closing.

That situation has developed in connection with a decision handed down by Lincoln County District Judge Keith Windrum.

Windrum ordered the termination of a trust for the home after two members of the board of trustees contended the board is not following the intent of the late Fred Leu in the operation of the home.

Leu, a retired North Platte area rancher, died in 1971 and left some of his estate to set up a trust for establishment of the home. The home opened on March 31, 1974.

According to court records, Leu's intent was to establish a home for children under eight years old. The board has decided the home should be for "all needy minors."

A motion for a new trial has been filed in connection with Windrum's decision.

"Although Fred Leu said in the will that the home would be for children under eight years," said Andy Larsen of North Platte, home board chairman, "I believe his main concern was in helping children."

The home now has seven children and has a capacity of eight. Of the seven, four are over eight years old.

State Commercial Broadcasters Fearful Of Public Radio Idea

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"We have to agree" with Nebraska Educational Television Commissioner James D. Johnson's statement that commercial broadcasters "fear" a proposed public radio network would "damage their ability to make a living," the Nebraska Broadcasters Association president said Friday.

Joe Stavas, general manager of KTTT in Columbus, said Commissioner Johnson is a former NBA director and "He speaks for us."

The NBA is on record strongly opposing public radio, but Stavas was the first official acknowledgement its members consider it a threat to their livelihood.

Johnson, a Kearney commercial broadcaster, made the remark as the NETV Commission discussed a consultants' report recommending an immediate move to set up the Nebraska network.

The commission voted to study the proposal for a year.

The report said commercial broadcasters who were interviewed expressed these objections to public radio: Nebraskans haven't said they want it. Commercial radio already satisfies listeners' needs. Tax dollars would compete unfairly with private enterprise. Government would control and influence programs. Public radio is no more justified than tax-supported newspapers and magazines would be. Already overburdened taxpayers can't afford a new network.

The report concluded those arguments are "somewhat off the point or without foundation," and "inconsistent with experience" of public radio in other states.

"Frankly," Stavas said in a telephone interview, "this survey comes out just the way we (NBA) predicted it would."

Commissioner Steven B. Sample, University of Nebraska vice president, expressed scorn for the NBA charge that the panel would "whitewash" any non-objective study. "There's not going to be a railroad action" to recommend the network, he said.

In delaying action, the commission also voted 5-0 to seek both a meeting with the NBA and its cooperation in the final decision on public radio. (The NBA declined such an offer earlier.) Stavas said he could not agree to any such NBA action without his board's approval.

"It's a finance situation," he said. "Just because the survey has been released in favor of (public radio) it's still going to have to be financed through legislative action."

The NETV Commission has no authority to establish or operate public radio, which would require a change in law.

Johnson said the commission must decide its real purpose, to "program for an elite minority" or for what all Nebraskans need and can afford. Commission Chairman Philip Heckman of Crete replied, "Every one of us are members of an elite minority," given personal preferences.

Markets: A Glance

Market Dips Despite Prime Rate Cuts

NEW YORK (AP) — Prime rate cuts by several major banks failed to break up the mood of caution surrounding the stock market Friday, and prices wound up with a slight loss for the session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 3.38 to 836.04, finishing the week with a net loss of 4.48.

October nevertheless went into the books as the best month for the market since June, with the Dow gaining 42.16 points.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index declined 27 to 89.04 on the day, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index lost 13 to 47.05.

Declining issues outnumbered gainers 714 to 626 the 1,810 traded on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slowed to 12.91 million shares from 15.08 million on Thursday.

As trading began Friday morning, New York's First National City Bank announced it would lower its prime rate from 7 1/2 to 7 1/8 per cent effective Monday, following a similar cut posted Thursday by the First National Bank of St. Louis.

The reduction in the basic charge on corporate loans was matched by several other large banks during the day, including Chicago's Continental Illinois and Crocker National of San Francisco.

But the best the Dow could manage was a gain of a little more than a point in the early going, and even that small advance had disappeared by late in the morning.

The impact of the prime rate reductions appeared to have been diminished by the fact that it had been widely expected on Wall Street.

And analysts said there still seemed to be a reluctance to buy in the face of uncertainty over whether and when New York City might default on maturing debts.

Some of the big-name glamor stocks bucked the downtrend. Digital Equipment climbed 4 1/2 to 128 1/2; IBM 1/4 to 212 1/4; Texas Instruments 1 1/4 to 97 1/2, and Avon Products 1/2 to 41.

Gulf Resources & Chemical was actively traded, dropping 1/2 to 14 1/2. The company reported a sharp decline in quarterly earnings.

Bates Manufacturing rose 1/4 to 28 1/2. The company said it was considering a tender offer for 325,000 of its own shares at $30.25 apiece.

Marion Laboratories, the day's most active issue, showed a 1/2-point loss at 12 1/2 on turnover of 127,300 shares.

PETERSON AND 'POOCHIE' . . . walk near the entrance to the homestead dugout.

INSIDE THE DUGOUT . . . no snakes nowadays.

Text by Liane Guenther

Homestead For Sale

Otto Peterson was born 74 years ago on the homestead near Davey. Friday he watched as antique hunters carried much of it away.

Around the turn of the century the farm was alive with animals and children, party guests and workers, trees and wildflowers.

All that was left for auction was a graveyard of rusting farm machinery, tools, bottles, automobiles, sagging buildings, shoulder-high weeds, gnarled trees.

Peterson, a small, elfin man, seemed a little saddened at the idea of auctioning pieces of his past to the highest bidder.

"It kinda gives you a feeling . . . Well, I had a lot of good times with this stuff," he said as he made a final inspection before the bidding began.

He lingered long with fond memories. Others he hurried by.

"We used to go to town and get groceries in this two-seater springwagon," he said, tapping the frame with his cane. "It's prob'ly been 50 yrs since we really used it."

It's as though time stood still on that 160 acres while the wind and weather took their toll.

The old barn lists a little now. The paint melted away long ago and some of the boards dropped off.

It was new back in 1912 when the Petersons christened it with a barn dance. Otto was only 11 years old, but he remembers.

Neighbors from miles around wheeled up in their buggies and came inside to dos-a-dos and swing their partners. Up in the loft, the fiddler and organ player rattled the rafters with old-fashioned, foot-tappin' tunes.

The barn stays but the insides went on the auction block . . . the buggy and harnesses, barrels and whips.

Peterson pointed the way through the brush and weeds to the old homestead dugout. It wasn't for sale but it's an interesting sidelight.

"The snakes used to come and stick their heads through the cracks in the sandstone," he says mischievously. "I don't think there are any snakes now but you never can tell . . ."

His soft, high-pitched voice disappears with him through the doorway.

"They say it was real warm in here in the wintertime," the little voice echoes from within.

Except for two small windows, the dugout resembles a cozy cave, about 25 feet by 15 feet. He was right; the snakes are gone. Swallow and wasp nests are the only clues anything has lived there recently.

Continuing the tour, he wound his way through a maze of old machinery made in the late 1890s to follow a team of horses through the fields. There's a walking plow, a walking lister and a "good ole" binder, a one-row planter, one-row go-dig and two, one-row listers.

Peterson rapped a cold, hard metal seat on one of the machines with his cane.

"They was pretty nice to sit on. I used to get sick riding on that one," he said, pointing to a rusty pile of wheels and iron.

"In the summer, when it was real hot, we'd drink a lot of water. Then we'd get kinda seasick cultivating corn."

Peterson is a happy man, always smiling or joking. "I don't like the other kind," he confided.

"It's just me and the two dogs now. They're my best pals."

"Poochie" and "Blackie," the two mongrels, follow him everywhere.

Except for the dogs and "too darn many cats," Peterson lives alone in the old house that "ain't hardly fit to live in anymore."

He said he decided to sell remnants of the old homestead partly because of his "dizzy spells" and arthritis and partly because "nobody's gonna use all this stuff . . . I need the money, anyway, and everybody's been urging me to sell it and take it easy."

With the money, he'll either buy a trailer home to park out behind some trees on the farm or rent an apartment in town.

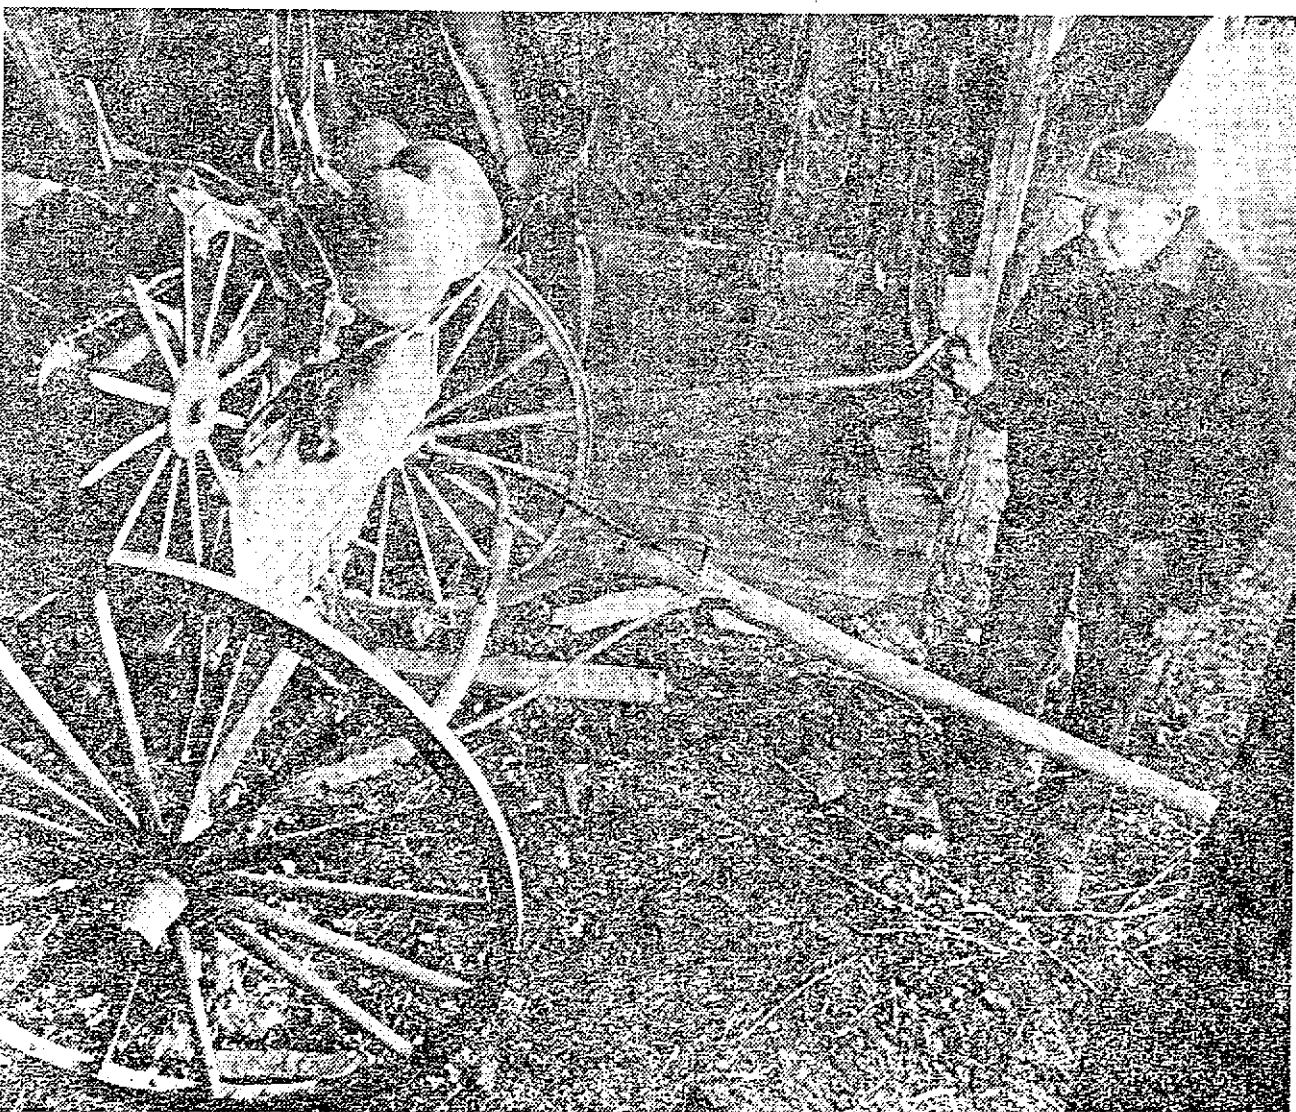

"And then . . ." His clear, blue eyes opened wide. "Well, I guess I'm too old now . . ."

In a whisper, he explained he always dreamed of going back to Denmark for a visit.

His father, Jacob, came to Nebraska in 1874. Last Peterson heard, his 98-year-old cousin was still living in the old country.

He hobbled back to rest on the porch and Poochie found a soft, warm spot in the weeds to lay beside him.

"I guess I'll never get there now," he sighed.

NU, Mizzou's Balanced Offenses Set

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Columbia, Mo. — Nebraska and Missouri, two of the Big Eight Conference's most balanced offensive teams, will show the nation how they do it Saturday afternoon on national television.

In addition to the estimated 8.2 million fans who will view the game on ABC-TV, a record crowd of nearly 69,000 fans will sit in at Faurer Field. Kickoff is set for noon. The telecast will begin at 11:30 a.m.

The weather is expected to be mild with partly cloudy skies. The high temperature is forecast to be 70 and there is a very slight chance of scattered showers in the area.

The Cornhuskers, undefeated in seven games and ranked third in the wire service polls, will be making their first television appearance of the season, and they're eager to enhance their image in the eyes of the pollsters.

For Missouri, it's the Tigers' third TV shot of the season, including a season-opening 20-7 victory over Alabama on national television. That was a game that did much to renew the contention that the Big Eight is the country's premier football conference.

THE LINCOLN STAR

Saturday, November 1, 1975 13

Since then the Tigers have lost twice (to Michigan 31-7 and to Colorado 31-20), but their 5-2 record has kept them in the top 20. They're ranked 12th in both polls.

Both teams go into the game with key runners not fully recovered from earlier injuries, but both are near enough to 100 per cent that they're expected to play.

Curtis Craig, Nebraska wingback who also runs some at I-back, was nearing full recovery from a bruised knee sustained in the Oklahoma State game two weeks ago.

Missouri I-back Tony Galbreath, who Coach Al Onofrio calls "truly a back of All-American caliber and even the Heisman Trophy," injured an ankle in the second game of the season against Illinois and hasn't been full-speed since.

He was able to play the next game against Wisconsin and gained 104 yards — his last 100-plus day — but he aggravated the injury. The 225-pound senior didn't make the trip to Michigan, played only briefly against Oklahoma State and Colorado and missed the Kansas State game.

It was at Boulder that he had to be helped off the field early in the third quarter. He has been practicing this week and Onofrio said he's encouraged with his running although he hasn't been able to cut as well as he did before the injury.

If he isn't full-speed, his spot will be taken by Curtis Brown, who carried 22 times for 141 yards against K-State last week.

Onofrio has beaten Coach Tom Osborne in both meetings since Osborne moved up to head coach of the Huskers. He has tremendous respect for the 1975 NU team, but he isn't conceding a thing.

"Their offense seems to be better than last year," Onofrio said, adding that "quarterback Vince Ferragamo has definitely helped."

Tight end Larry Mushinski, who had swelling in an elbow Thursday, appears to have recovered and Osborne said he would start. The Huskers brought along Rick Panneton as a backup tight end in place of Ken Spaeth, who has a sprained ankle.

Second-string fullback Gary Higgs will replace guard Steve Lindquist on NU's special kickoff and punting units. Lindquist didn't make the trip because of a jammed neck and a muscle pull.

All other Huskers appeared ready to go during a brief workout at Faurer Field Friday afternoon.

After the workout, the ABC-TV crew shot film to be used for the pre-game introductions. Quarterback Vince Ferragamo was interviewed for the show.

Coaches Capsules

Missouri's Al Onofrio: "We have entered each game with the thought of having as good a running attack and passing attack as we could have. As the game progresses you get a feeling of what is working well and keep on doing those things. Defensively, Nebraska is very good. Their secondary is by far the best we've played against. They used frequent changeups and try to keep you off-balance."

Nebraska's Tom Osborne: "We really never have made any conscious effort to fire a football team up. We're just going to let the natural momentum that we pick up do the job. The fact that Missouri is a very fine football team will take care of getting ready to play. We're not going to be overconfident. Our players have looked at Missouri films and they know it's going to be a real battle."

Turf to Change

Columbia, Mo. — Natural grass is on its way out in the Big Eight Conference.

Faurer Field, the only football facility with grass, is expected to be fitted with a carpet before the 1976 season rolls around, under an improvement and enlargement program which has been recommended by Chancellor Herbert W. Schooling and the athletics committee and which now must be approved by President C. Bruce Hatchford and the Board of Curators.

The proposal calls for new dressing rooms and training facilities (women will take over the present dressing room), new rest rooms, new all-weather track and field facilities, and 12,000-14,000 permanent seats to replace approximately 7,000 temporary wood stands.

SPORTS SIGNALS

By Bob Owens
Star Sports Editor

Bowl Time Nearing

Columbia, Mo. — Nebraska and Missouri not only will attract a record crowd in Faurer Field and on national television Saturday. The Cornhuskers and Tigers will be under the scrutinizing eyes of scouts from at least three bowls.

On hand at last week's game against Colorado were representatives of the Fiesta, Cotton and Sugar bowls. This week the Gator, Liberty and Sun bowls will have men in the Missouri press box.

Under new National Collegiate Athletic Association guidelines, no invitations can be made until Nov. 15, which happens to be the next-to-last regularly scheduled game for most of the nation's colleges.

I asked Bill Shover, Phoenix newspaper executive whose hobby is working with promotion of the Fiesta Bowl, if he didn't think it would make more sense to make the date for bids coincide with the last scheduled game of most teams.

"We have proposed that to the NCAA and I think most of the other bowls feel the same way," Shover said. Cliff Kern of the Sugar Bowl, who watched the 63-21 Husker win over Colorado, agreed, but said the bowls now have no choice but to offer invitations on Nov. 15 — sorta in self-defense because of the fear of not coming up with a good matchup.

Kern said the Sugar Bowl is following a long established policy of trying to get the top two teams that are available. Because of tieups with some conferences, many teams are automatic selections. One example is the Big Eight's commitment to send its champion to the Orange Bowl.

Record Crowd Expected

Despite the ABC-TV telecast, Missouri officials are expecting a record crowd for Saturday's game. The old mark of 68,331 was set in 1973 against Oklahoma.

Crowd marks are being set all around the Big Eight this season. Last weekend 256,315 fans went through the turnstiles at the four conference games.

All four of this Saturday's games are sold out. Missouri will sell about 2,000 standing room tickets Saturday morning on the north hill of the stadium area.

The Big Eight is headed toward breaking two attendance marks — total season attendance and per-game attendance average.

The record for total attendance is 2,209,381 set in 1972 while the record for best average per game is 48,391 set last season.

The ABC-TV announcing crew for the NU-MU game will be Keith Jackson, Bill Fleming and Jim Lampley.

Catching Up On Football

Omaha radio station KFAB will join the Oklahoma-Nebraska game in progress immediately following the play-by-play of the Husker-Tiger game. Fans should be able to hear about a half of the game unless the contest here takes as long to play as last week's three-hour marathon in Lincoln.

The top ten in the Handi-Football Ratings: 1. Ohio State, minus 13; 2. Oklahoma, minus 8; 3. Alabama, minus 7; 4. Michigan, minus 4; 5. Nebraska, minus 3; 6. Texas, minus 2; 7. Southern California, minus 1; 8. Texas A & M, plus 1; tie for 9th among Penn State, Florida and UCLA, all plus 2.

Quote of the week from Indiana's Lee Corso, talking about Ohio State's Woody Hayes: "What's Coach Hayes got now? — 209 victories? At my average, if I live as long as Methuselah, I might make it. The only trouble is, Hayes would probably still be coaching, too — and still winning." Methuselah lasted 969 years.

The Nebraska freshman team will be honored at the annual post-season banquet at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 19 at the Lincoln Country Club. Tickets are $13.50. The unbeaten frosh will close the season Nov. 14 against the Iowa State Jayvees in NU's Memorial Stadium.

Dr. William Boyd, president of the University of Oregon, is my kind of man. He said this week he considers athletics "one of the most valuable, vital parts of the educational program."

He added: "I believe the success of an athletic program is integral to the success of the college or institution. Athletics is a form of outreach the public understands and is interested in and it is not an accident that there is a correlation between academic and athletic success."

Johnson Gains Facts, Figures On Future Foe

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Omaha Westside coach Don Johnson maintains he has no preference of who his No. 1-rated Warriors play next week in the state Class A football playoffs.

But he's accumulating knowledge on all three possible semifinal opponents.

"Of course, we know much more about Bellevue than Lincoln East or Grand Island because we've played them," notes Johnson.

Since Westside clinched a qualifying spot early, the Warriors got a jump start on scouting.

"We scouted Grand Island for the third time Friday when they played Hastings and it was our second chance to see East when they played Lincoln High," Johnson says.

Bellevue's Saturday night game against Omaha Gross at UNO will crystallize the Class A playoff picture and determine which team Westside plays in the semifinals.

"We have no preference at all," he insists. "We're just happy to be in there. We're very anxious to find out who we play. Whoever it is will be a good football team."

Lincoln East's Lee Zentic echoed Johnson's sentiments concerning an opening game opponent, he also had no preference.

"We're just tickled to be there," Zentic said after his Spartans, the only unbeaten Class A team in the state, soundly defeated Lincoln High at Seacrest Field Friday night.

Grand Island's Ken Fischer, however, wouldn't mind getting a crack at East High, the only team to defeat his Islanders during the regular season.

"We don't care who we play the first round," Fischer said after 8-1 Grand Island beat Hastings Friday afternoon. "I see advantages of playing either East or Westside," he added. "I think we can beat East High because we know what they do. I don't know anything about the Omaha teams, but if we played Westside we'd be at home."

With Omaha Gross and Bellevue yet to play in Class A, the projected pairings send Grand Island to East and Westside against Bellevue, should the Chieftains win.

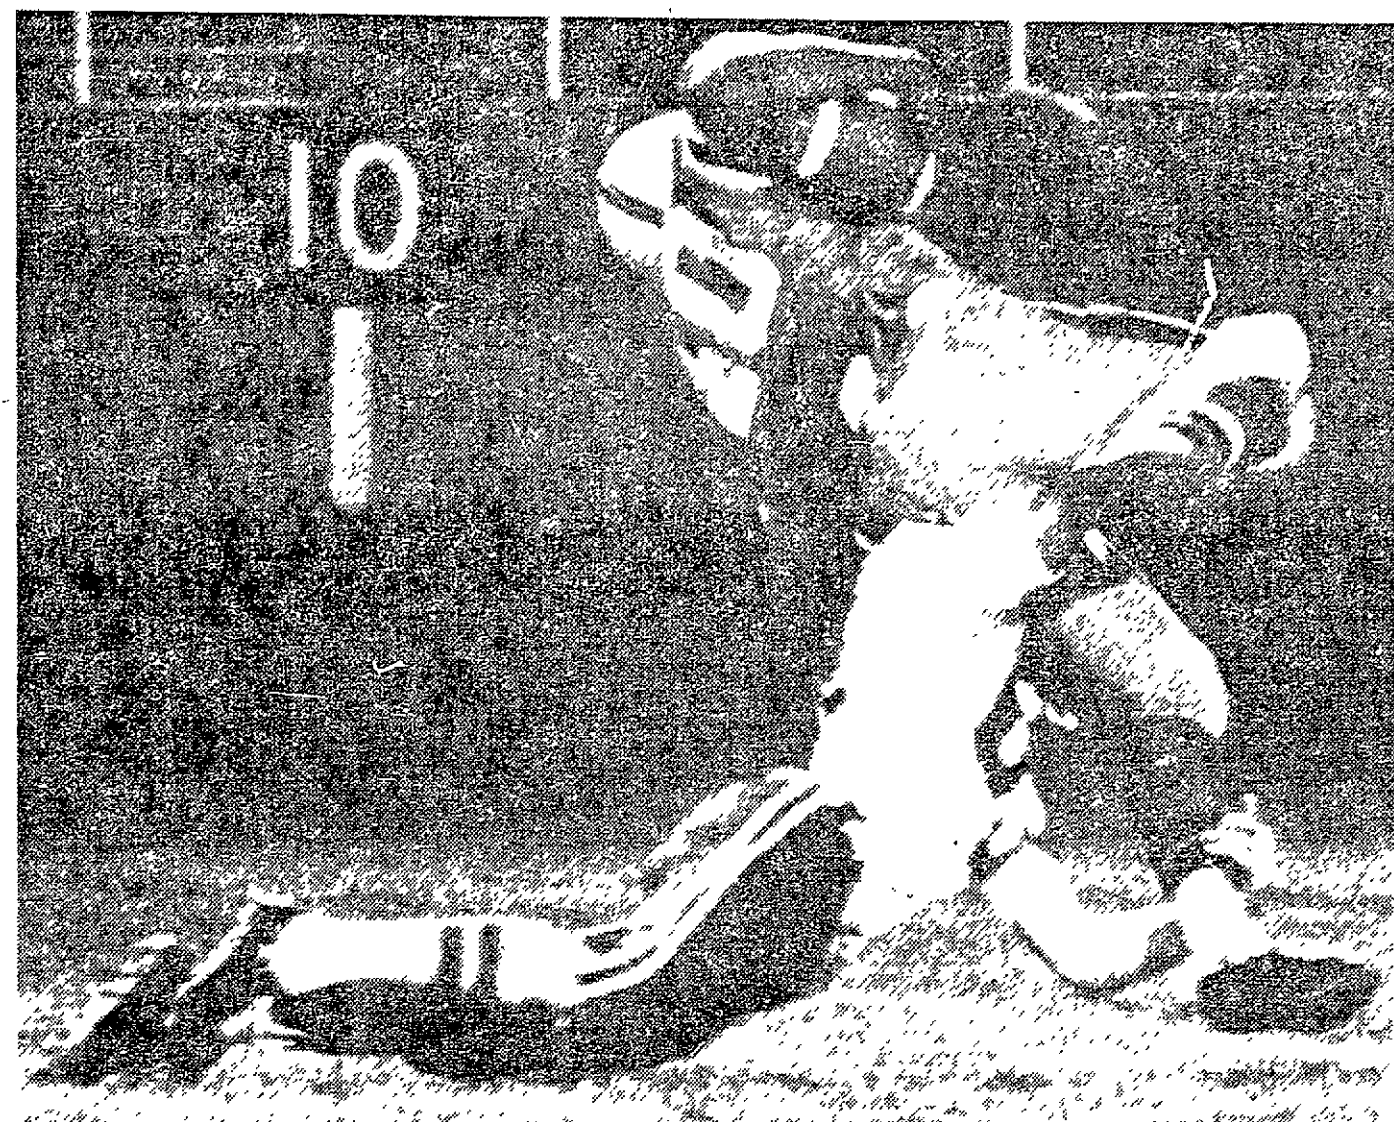

Johnson's Warriors were promoted to No. 1 status for the first time this season earlier in the week in light of last week's major upsets.

"Our athletes and our school are very enthused about being No. 1," he says. "We want to stay there. This team has a tremendous attitude."

"Being No. 1 certainly won't affect them in any negative way," adds Johnson. "In fact, I think it'll be more of a boost than anything."

When Westside dropped a 14-6

East Continues State Title Bid, 34-18

By DAVE SITTLER

Lincoln East again proved Friday night, that when it comes to football in the Capital City, the Spartans are still King of the Hill.

Coach Lee Zentic's East club, the Sunday Journal and Star state champion three out of the past four years, continued their quest for another state crown by romping over Lincoln High 34-18 at Seacrest Field.

The victory over the game but outmanned Links, earned Lincoln East a spot in Nebraska's first prep playoffs which will start next Friday.

"We're in the playoffs and that's what we've wanted all year," Zentic said.

East, needing the victory over Coach Jerry Ball's Lincoln High team to gain the playoff spot over Lincoln Northeast, dominated the contest from the outset against the Links who finished with a dismal 1-8 record.

Senior quarterback Dave Watters put on a brilliant display of running and passing to push the Spartans to a commanding 21-7 halftime lead before a crowd of 3,536.

Watters scored all three of East's first half touchdowns on runs of 35, 3 and 1 yards in addition to rushing for 82 yards and passing for an additional 85 yards in the initial half.

"I thought Dave Watters played an exceptional game," Zentic said of the 170-pound signal caller.

Powered by Watters' balanced offensive output, the Spartans needed only eight plays to march 87 yards for the first score of the evening.

Running the Spartans' veer offense with slick execution, Watters slid around right end and scampered 35 yards for the touchdown with 8:36 left in the first quarter.

"Lincoln High was concentrating on taking away our pitch and dive plays, but they forgot about the quarterback," Zentic said. "It's a credit to Watters for the way he picked their defense apart."

Lincoln High made an early challenge to the third rated and undefeated Spartans, when East gave the Links excellent field position following an East punt which traveled only six yards.

Following the weak punt which left the ball on East's 16-yard line, the Links punched the ball into the end zone on a 3-yard

Lightning Sparks 'Bolts, 56-6

By TOM VINT

Somebody up there likes Lincoln Pius X. An oner arrived just before kickoff Friday night when a bolt of lightning and clap of thunder woke up the crowd.

"Our kids kind of like that, you know," Pius X coach Vince

Aldrich said of the omen. "The kids say the Thunderbolts strike in rain."

It didn't rain Friday but the 'Bolts didn't mind. They romped over Omaha Cathedral, 56-6, to clinch a berth in the Class B state playoffs in defense of the No. 1 title.

Quarterback Pat Fuller and tailback Tom Doggett provided the punch for the unbeaten Thunderbolts. Pius X ran up a 42-6 lead with just seconds gone in the second half and then retired the first team for the night.

Fuller scored the first of eight Pius X touchdowns with a fake to workhorse Doggett and an easy stroll into the end zone from 10 yards out. With 5:48 left in the first quarter, Doggett booted the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Fumble Recovery

Just over three minutes later, Pius X's Lonnie Petrzilka recovered a Cathedral fumble on the Cardinal 30. Five plays later, fullback Jerry Kobza plowed through the middle from five yards out for the second score.

Cathedral looked like it would make a game of it as the 4-5 Cardinals marched right back with their first TD, capped by a one-yard quarterback sneak by Pat Mitchell.

The Cathedral touchdown seemed to inspire Pius X, however. Behind a pair of wingback reverses to Steve Rohren, good for 28 and 12 yards, Kobza again found a big hole up the middle for a 24-yard touchdown scamper. This time, Doggett's kick failed.

Just as the Thunderbolts made it apparent they could run well against the Cardinals, Fuller came back with a pair of touchdown tosses to Rohren. The first was good for 27 yards, finding Rohren so open he was able to back peddle into the end zone.

Rohren's second catch was from 18 yards out. A two-point run by Fuller and another kick by Doggett made it 35-6 at the half.

Doggett's first-half rushes totalled 116 yards on just 10 carries, putting the senior all-star over 1,000 yards for the second straight season.

73-Yard Score

He also opened the second half with a 73-yard touchdown on the kickoff return after bobbing the ball momentarily at the Pius X 27. Once he found the handle, he exploded through the middle of the Cathedral defenders, then outraced two safety men to the end zone. The second and third teams took over from there with a 42-6 cushion.

Reserve quarterback Pat Heng followed Fuller's example in the third quarter with a 25-yard scramble for Pius X's seventh TD. Heng later sprained an ankle and had to be removed from the game.

Doggett's backup, Jim Elsener added the final touchdown with a six-yard run after setting himself up on a 35-yarder.

The 'Bolts, with 332 yards rushing, ended the regular season 8-0. They face Waverly, a 4-5-7 winner over Wahoo Friday night, in the first round of the Class B playoffs next Friday.

Under the playoff format, the game is to be played at Waverly but Waverly coach Randy Hash has been looking into possibilities of playing the game elsewhere.

First Downs: Cathedral 10, Pius X 14. Total Yards: Cathedral 35, Pius X 25. Punting: Cathedral 4, Pius X 3. Fumbles: Cathedral 1, Pius X 0. Penalties: Cathedral 2, Pius X 1.

Pius X's Tom Doggett (33) starts out for a big gain led by teammates Pat Fuller (14) and Jim Stefkovich.

Late Score Sinks LSE, 14-8

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Papillon — Almost as if given a chance to relive a nightmare, the Papillon Monarchs scored with 1:26 left to topple the tenth-rated Lincoln Southeast Knights, 14-8, here Friday night.

After driving 65 yards in 15 plays, the Monarchs faced almost the same situation as a week ago when they lost to Lincoln East after failing to score from the three-yard-line with 35 seconds left.

After two tries up the middle, Papillon had a fourth-and-one situation on the one-yard-line. Papillon quarterback Jim Lynam then crashed into the line and lost the football in the ensuing pileup. Moments later, the officials signaled a touchdown after finding Monarch tackle Jim Bergen had recovered the football for the score to give the Monarchs a 14-8 lead with 1:34 left.

Turning Point

"I thought it was the turning point when the officials who said they didn't see the play, called the touchdown," said LSE Coach Frank Solich. "They said the kid fell on the ball, but they couldn't even tell me who it was."

"I really don't know what happened," said Papillon coach George Payne. "Lynam put it across the goal line and then lost the ball."

The Knights took the lead just seven minutes earlier when quarterback Ed Davis hit tight end Bill Moody on a 12-yard touchdown pass, capping an 85-yard drive.

The touchdown pass was only the second pass in the drive — the other was a 35-yard effort from halfback Jim Bolin to receiver Gary Hager.

The Monarchs took the lead in the second quarter when running back Scott Woodward scampered around the right end from the four to give Papio a 6-0 lead. Mike Fantasi booted the extra point to increase the margin to 7-0.

That drive began when defensive back Bill Hurt picked off a Davis pass that was deflected by Mike Demato at the Papillon 37.

Hurt turned that trick once again in the third quarter, intercepting a pass that had been tipped by Papillon's Randy Wink, halting a Knight drive at the Papillon 10.

Hager was the standout for the Knights, grabbing eight passes for 66 yards and fullback Bolin gained 49 yards running.

Paces Monarchs

Woodard paced the Monarchs with 72 of their 123 rushing yards.

"This is just one of those years where nothing seemed to go our way," said Solich. "Our kids played well but I don't think we got a break all year."

Papillon's Payne said he agreed with Solich — but about his team.

"We haven't gotten any breaks all year either and we were ready for a break tonight," Payne said.

"Our whole offensive line showed a lot of determination and our backs did a tremendous job," he added.

Solich, whose Knights finished 4-5, said he was proud of his team and that it would be difficult to find a tougher squad than Papillon.

Papillon's Payne, whose team finished 5-4, offered the same compliments.

"Southeast may just be the best team in Lincoln this year," he said.

Zentic Praises Defense

run by Uduak Udofia with 3:25 left in the opening period. "Our kicking game gave that touchdown away," Zentic said. "Our first team defense didn't give up any points all night which was very encouraging."

After Link kicker John Beaver's extra point sailed wide left to leave East ahead 7-6, the Spartans dominated until Zentic pulled out his first string players at the start of the fourth quarter with East ahead 34-6.

The Spartans, who improved their overall record to 8-0-2, ballooned to the wide margin as Watters dove over from one yard out with 11:38 remaining in the second quarter.

Watters almost blew the score as he broke loose for a 23-yard gain but fumbled the ball when he was hit at the 10. Split end Ken Rejda alertly fell on the ball at the one-yard line to set Watters' second score.

It was about the only error Watters made during the contest, as he ended up with 98 yards rushing and 113 yards passing.

Watters got his third score on a four-yard run with 1:14 left in the half, and had another touchdown called back when he faked out everyone, including the officials, on a one-yard run in the third quarter.

On the play, Watters had faked a handoff to halfback Sam Yowell and then skirted around left end for the score. But the referee, thinking Yowell had been stopped short of the goal had whistled the play dead.

No matter, Yowell got the yard and the touchdown on the next play to boost the Spartans to a 27-6 margin.

Halfback Dave Stear put the final East points on the board on five-yard run as the third quarter ended.

With Zentic sweeping his bench, Lincoln High was able to score twice in the final period behind the passing of quarterback Dean Carstens and the receiving of end Mike Smith.

Carstens took advantage of the Spartan's second-unit defense as he threw touchdown strikes of 37 and 35 yards to the speedy Smith.

"We start fiddlin' and piddlin' around out there when our reserves went in," Zentic said. With the score narrowed to 34-18 with Smith's second score with 3:35 left in the game, Zentic hustled his first offensive unit back into the contest in a move that could prove costly.

On the first play, Watters gained nine yards but suffered an injury to his left elbow which forced to him to the bench for the rest of the game.

"We put ice on his (Watters) arm right away and it doesn't look to be serious," Zentic said. Zentic, who has been the Spartan's head coach since the school opened in 1967, praised his squad's effort.

"You have to give these kids credit. They really put it together tonight," he said. "Lincoln High isn't as bad a team as their record shows."

"I'm just pleased we are representing Lincoln in the first playoffs. It places a lot of pressure on us, but I think we will represent the city well."

The Spartans will face either Grand Island or Bellevue in the opening round next Friday.

"I don't care who we play really," said Zentic. "I'm just tickled to be in there."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST
By SIDNEY OMARR

Saturday, November 1, 1975

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A secret is revealed. What you do with the information depends upon family member - and spending habits. Message will be clarified. Taurus, Libra figure prominently. Accent on special organizational activity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Perfect techniques. Refuse to be recipient of second-hand goods. An individual, attracted to you and afraid at the same time, will influence happenings. Pisces, Virgo could figure prominently. You will revise some hopes, goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get into areas which had been prohibited. You also have access to "privileged" information. You have rare opportunity to increase income. Get organized! Means stop moving against your own best interests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Course planned is subject to change. Person you relied upon may have feet of clay. Be aware - and mature. You can rely on your own talents, judgments. You will complete important project - and be rid of a burden.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Highlight independence, creativity, the imprinting of your mind. Style. You get chance to collect "bad debt." Your views are vindicated. Leo, Aquarius persons could be very much in picture. Member of opposite sex will boost your morale.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY - you are unorthodox, independent, creative, somewhat selfish and temperamental. In December, you make new start, receive accolade, get credit for creative endeavors. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. In 1975, you will dance to your own tune, run your own affairs, get greater rewards and be closer to loved one than in past.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
